

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

PREFACE.

This is the first collection which has ever been made of Dublin Greek and Latin Verses. In 1867 some translations by myself and two friends were published under the title Hesperidum Susurri; and in 1869 I set on foot a terminal College magazine, called Kottabos, in which translations into Greek and Latin appeared, together with original English, Greek, and Latin verses, translations from ancient and modern languages, and a few light essays in prose. Most of the translations now brought together have already appeared in Hesperidum Susurri and Kottabos. They are all by Dublin men. With one or two exceptions, all the contributors are, or have been, Scholars of the House. Some of the translators are now connected, or have been connected, with other Colleges and Universities. Messrs, Cullinan, Leech, and Ridgeway are Fellows of their Colleges in Cambridge. Mr. Davies is Professor of Latin in Galway; Mr. Crossley is Professor of Greek in Belfast; and Mr. Boulger is Professor of Greek in Cork. But I am authorized by these gentlemen to state that their verses are, in the fullest sense of the word, Dublin Translations, written under Dublin influences, and as the result of Dublin training.

I suppose no apology is needed for a collection like this. Whatever opinion may be held on the question whether versification should be required as a condition of success at examinations for prizes and honors in classics, it can hardly be denied that it is desirable to preserve the best efforts of those who have attained skill in this branch of classical study. In truth, the more verse-writing is disused as a test, the more reason does there appear to be for the publication of books like this. If the composer cannot secure as heretofore Scholarships and Fellowships by the exercise of his art, it is fair that he should at least have the chance to recommend himself thereby to the good opinion of scholars, men of letters, and men of taste. TRINITY COLLEGE, DUBLIN, verse-writing is not disused as a test. Indeed, it never was more encouraged than it is now. But verse-writing does not, and never did, hold with us anything like the place which it used to hold in the Cambridge Tripos. Scholarships, Senior Moderatorships, even Fellowships, may be got with little or no skill in verse composition. But at all these examinations the marks are so allocated as to give a very considerable advantage to the skilful composer, and I think it would be difficult for a student to steadily maintain a position at the head of the men of his year without verse-writing.

I have had throughout the invaluable aid of my friend Professor Davies, and some of the principal contributors have from time to time favoured me with suggestions. But I was not able to furnish proofs to the various contributors—chiefly because they were widely scattered at the time when I was making the compilation, and it was desirable that its publication should not be too long delayed. I must therefore make myself, and not the contributors, responsible for any errors which may be found.

ROBERT Y. TYRRELL.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

ANTONIO-LEONATO.

- A. If you go on thus you will kill yourself; And 'tis not wisdom thus to second grief Against yourself.
- L. I pray thee, cease thy counsel,
 Which falls into mine ears as profitless
 As water in a sieve: give not me counsel;
 Nor let no comforter delight mine ear,
 But such a one whose wrongs do suit with mine.

Bring me a father, that so loved his child,
Whose joy of her is overwhelm'd like mine,
And bid him speak of patience;
Measure his woe the length and breadth of mine,

And let it answer every strain for strain;
As, thus for thus, and, such a grief for such,
In every lineament, branch, shape, and form:
If such a one will smile, and stroke his beard,
And, 'sorrow, wag!' cry: hem, when he should groan;

Patch grief with proverbs; make misfortune drunk

With candle-wasters; bring him yet to me,
And I of him will gather patience.
But there is no such man; for, brother, men
Can counsel, and speak comfort to that grief
Which they themselves not feel; but, tasting it,
Their counsel turns to passion, which before
Would give preceptial medicine to rage,
Fetter strong madness in a silken thread,
Charm ache with air, and agony with words.
No, no; 'tis all men's office to speak patience
To those that wring under the load of sorrow;
But no man's virtue, nor sufficiency,
To be so moral when he shall endure
The like himself: therefore give me no counsel:
My griefs cry louder than advertisement.

- A. Therein do men from children nothing differ.
- L. I pray thee, peace; I will be flesh and blood; For there was never yet philosopher That could endure the tooth-ache patiently; However they have writ the style of gods, And made a push at chance and sufferance.

His cloister'd flight, ere to black Hecate's summons

The shard-borne beetle with his drowsy hums Hath rung night's yawning peal, there shall be done

A deed of dreadful note.

L.M. What's to be done?

M. Be innocent of the knowledge, dearest chuck, Till thou applaud the deed. Come, seeling night,

Scarf up the tender eye of pitiful day;
And with thy bloody and invisible hand
Cancel and tear to pieces that great bond Which keeps me pale! Light thickens; and the crow

Makes wing to the rooky wood:

Good things of day begin to droop and drowse, Whiles night's black agents to their preys do rouse.

Thou marvell'st at my words; but hold thee still;

Things bad begun make strong themselves by ill.

So, prithee, go with me.

OENONE.

Hither came at noon
Mournful Œnone, wandering forlorn
Of Paris, once her playmate on the hills.
Her cheek had lost the rose, and round her neck
Floated her hair, or seemed to float, in rest.
She, leaning on a fragment twined with vine,
Sang to the stillness, till the mountain-shade
Sloped downward to her seat from the upper cliff.

O mother Ida, many-fountain'd Ida,
Dear mother Ida, hearken ere I die!
For now the noonday quiet holds the hill:
The grasshopper is silent in the grass:
The lizard, with her shadow on the stone,
Rests like a shadow, and the cicala sleeps.
The purple flowers droop: the golden bee
Is lily-cradled: I alone awake.
My eyes are full of tears, my heart of love;
My heart is breaking, and my eyes are dim,
And I am all a-weary of my life.

Dear mother Ida, hearken ere I die!
Hear me, O earth! hear me, O hills! O caves
That house the cold-crown'd snake! O mountain-brooks,

I am the daughter of a River-god;
Hear me, for I will speak, and build up all
My sorrow with my song, as yonder walls
Rose slowly to a music slowly breathed,
A cloud that gathered shape: for it may be
That while I speak of it, a little while
My heart may wander from its deeper woe.

O mother Ida, many-fountain'd Ida;
Dear mother Ida, hearken ere I die!
I waited underneath the dawning hills:
Aloft the mountain lawn was dewy-dark,
And dewy-dark aloft the mountain pine:
Beautiful Paris, evil-hearted Paris,
Leading a jet-black goat, white-horn'd, white-hoof'd,
Came up from reedy Simois all alone.

O mother Ida, hearken ere I die!

Fronting the dawn he moved: a leopard-skin
Droop'd from his shoulder, but his sunny hair
Cluster'd about his temples like a god's;
And his cheek brighten'd, as the foam-bow brightens
When the wind blows the foam, and all my heart
Went forth to embrace him coming ere he came.

Dear mother Ida, hearken ere I die!

He smiled, and opening out his milk-white palm
Disclosed a fruit of pure Hesperian gold,
That smelt ambrosially, and while I look'd
And listen'd, the full-flowing river of speech
Came down upon my heart. 'My own Œnone,
Beautiful-brow'd Œnone, my own soul,
Behold this fruit, whose gleaming rind engrav'n
"For the most fair," would seem to award it thine,

As lovelier than whatever Oread haunt
The knolls of Ida, loveliest in all grace
Of movement, and the charm of married brows.'

RAPHAEL.

EVE'S LAMENTATION.

O UNEXPECTED stroke, worse than of death!

Must I thus leave thee, Paradise? thus leave

Thee, native soil? these happy walks and shades,

Fit haunt of gods? where I had hoped to spend,

Quiet though sad, the respite of that day
That must be mortal to us both! O flowers,
That never will in other climate grow,
My early visitation, and my last
At even, which I bred up with tender hand
From the first opening bud, and gave ye names!

Who now shall rear ye to the sun, or rank
Your tribes, and water from the ambrosial fount?

- Q. Nimble mischance, that art so light of foot, Doth not thy embassage belong to me, And am I last that knows it? O, thou think'st To serve me last, that I may longest keep Thy sorrow in my breast. Come, ladies, go, To meet at London London's king in woe. What, was I born to this, that my sad look Should grace the triumph of great Bolingbroke? Gardener, for telling me these news of woe Pray God the plants thou graft'st may never grow.
- G. Poor queen! so that thy state might be no worse,

I would my skill were subject to thy curse. Here did she fall a tear; here in this place I'll set a bank of rue, sour herb of grace: Rue, even for ruth, here shortly shall be seen, In the remembrance of a weeping queen.

ATALANTA.

CHILD, if a man serve law through all his life,

And with his whole heart worship, him all gods

Praise: but who loves it only with his lips,
And not in heart and deed desiring it,
Hides a perverse will with obsequious words,
Him heaven infatuates: and his twin-born fate
Tracks and gains on him, scenting sins far off,
And the swift hounds of violent death devour.

Be man at one with equal-minded gods,
So shall he prosper: not thro' laws torn up,
Violated rule, and a new face of things.
A woman armed makes war upon herself,
Unwomanlike; and treads down use and wont,
And the sweet common honour that she hath,
Love, and the cry of children.

I am as hot as molten lead, and as heavy too: God keep lead out of me! I need no more weight than mine own bowels. I have led my ragamuffins where they are peppered; there's not three of my three hundred and fifty left alive; and they are for the town's end, to beg through life. But who comes here?
- P. What stand'st thou idle here? lend me thy sword:

- P. He is, indeed; and living to kill thee. I prithee lend me thy sword.
- F. Nay, before God, Hal, if Percy be alive, thou get'st not my sword; but take my pistol, if thou wilt.
- P. Give it me; what, is it in the case?
- F. Ay, Hal; 'tis hot, 'tis hot: there's that will sack a city.

ADDRESS TO THE STARS.

YE shining hosts,

That navigate a sea that knows no storms,

Beneath a vault unsullied by a cloud,

As one who, long detained on foreign shores,

Pants to return, and when he sees afar

His country's weather-bleached and battered rocks

From the green wave emerging, darts an eye

Radiant with joy towards the happy land;
So I with animated hopes behold,
And many an aching wish, your beamy fires,
That show like beacons in the blue abyss,
Ordained to guide the embodied spirit home
From toilsome life to never-ending rest.

A poor, unminded outlaw sneaking home—
My father gave him welcome to the shore:
And—when he heard him swear and vow to

He came but to be Duke of Lancaster,
To sue his livery, and beg his peace,
With tears of innocency and terms of zeal—
My father, in kind heart and pity mov'd,
Swore him assistance, and perform'd it, too.

Perceived Northumberland did lean to him,
The more and less came in with cap and knee;

Met him in boroughs, cities, villages;
Attended him on bridges, stood in lanes;
Laid gifts before him, proffer'd him their oaths;

Gave him their heirs; as pages follow'd him, Even at the heels, in golden multitudes. He presently—as greatness knows itself— Steps me a little higher than his vow Made to my father, while his blood was poor, Upon the naked shore at Ravenspurg; And now, forsooth, takes on him to reform Some certain edicts, and some straight decrees, That lay too heavy on the commonwealth: Cries out upon abuses, seems to weep Over his country's wrongs; and, by this face, This seeming brow of justice, did he win The hearts of all that he did angle for. Proceeded further: cut me off the heads Of all the favourites, that the absent king In deputation left behind him here, When he was personal in the Irish war.

ON CHLORIS BEING ILL.

Can I cease to care,

Can I cease to languish,

While my darling fair

Is on the couch of anguish?

Every hope is fled,

Every fear is terror;

Slumber e'en I dread,

Every dream is horror.

Hear me, Powers divine!

Oh, in pity hear me!

Take aught else of mine,

But my Chloris spare me.

MANFRED.

GLORIOUS Orb! the idol Of early nature, and the vigorous race Of undiseased mankind, the giant sons Of the embrace of angels with a sex More beautiful than they, which did draw down The erring spirits, who can ne'er return.— Most glorious orb! that wert a worship, ere The mystery of thy making was reveal'd! Thou earliest minister of the Almighty, Which gladden'd on their mountain tops the hearts Of the Chaldean shepherds, till they pour'd Themselves in orisons! Thou material god! And representative of the Unknown— Who chose thee for his shadow! Thou chief star, Centre of many stars! which mak'st our earth Endurable, and temperest the hues And hearts of all who walk within thy rays! Sire of the seasons! Monarch of the climes,

And those who dwell in them! for near or far,
Our inborn spirits have a tint of thee,
Even as our outward aspects;—thou dost rise,
And shine, and set in glory. Fare thee well!
I ne'er shall see thee more. As my first glance
Of love and wonder was for thee, then take
My latest look; thou wilt not beam on one
To whom the gifts of life and warmth have been
Of a more fatal nature. He is gone:
I follow.

MORTE D'ARTHUR.

But, as he walk'd, King Arthur panted hard, Like one that feels a nightmare on his bed When all the house is mute. So sigh'd the King, Muttering and murmuring at his ear 'Quick, quick!

I fear it is too late, and I shall die.'
But the other swiftly strode from ridge to ridge,
Clothed with his breath, and looking, as he walk'd,
Larger than human on the frozen hills.
He heard the deep behind him, and a cry
Before. His own thought drove him like a goad.
Dry clash'd his harness in the icy caves
And barren chasms, and all to left and right
The bare black cliff clang'd round him, as he based

His feet on juts of slippery crag that rang Sharp-smitten with the dint of armed heels— And on a sudden, lo! the level lake, And the long glories of the winter moon.

ΑΝΗΡ ΓΑΡ ΟΥ ΣΤΕΝΑΚΤΟΣ, ΑΛΛ' ΕΙ ΤΙΣ ΒΡΟΤΩΝ ΘΑΥΜΑΣΤΟΣ.

έως δ' έβαιν' Αρθουρος έψυχορράγει ώσπερ βλέπων τις έν λέχει φαντασμάτων μορφάς αμόρφους, παντός εύδοντος δόμου, οὖτως γ' έβρυχᾶθ', ὧδ' ἀεὶ θροούμενος πρὸς ἀτί: 'θᾶσσον, θᾶσσον ἔρπε, μὴ θάνω ην ύστερήσης ' ὁ δὲ πάγους ἀμείβεται ταχέως βαδίζων, ἇσθμά τ' ἐστολισμένος, λόφοις τε μείζων ή κατ' ανθρωπον πρέπων κρυσταλλοπήξι. τουπίσω μέν οίδματος έν τῷ δὲ πρόσθεν ἔκλυεν γηρύματος ένδον δ' ὁ θυμός, κέντρον ως, ήπειγέ νιν. ψυχροίς δ' έν ἄντροις κάν ἀπανθρώποις μυχοίς κράμβως ἔκλαγξε θὧπλα· καὶ πάντη μέλας πέριξ έδούπει κρημνός οἱ κραταίλεως άγμοις τιθέντι σφαλερον άστείπτοις ίχνος, οι χαλκοπλεύρων έκτύπουν ποδών ύπο. αὐτῶν δ' ἄποπτον ἢν θαλάσσιον θέναρ άφαρ, φλέγουσα δ', ως γε χειμώνος, τότε κλεινή Σελήνη φως μάλισθ' έκήβολον.

Then saw they how there hove a dusky barge,
Dark as a funeral scarf from stem to stern,
Beneath them; and descending they were ware
That all the decks were dense with stately forms
Black-stoled, black-hooded, like a dream—by these Three Queens with crowns of gold, and from them rose

A cry that shiver'd to the tingling stars, And, as it were one voice, an agony Of lamentation, like a wind, that shrills All night in a waste land, where no one comes, Or hath come since the making of the world.

CICERO'S SPEECH.

Great honours are great burdens; but on whom

They're cast with envy, he doth bear two loads;

His cares must still be double to his joys
In any dignity; where, if he err,
He finds no pardon: and for doing well
A most small praise, and that wrung out by force.

I speak thus, Romans, knowing what the weight

Of the high charge you have trusted to me is;
Not that thereby I would with art decline
The good or greatness of your benefit;
For I ascribe it to your singular grace,
And vow to owe it to no title else,
Except the gods, that Cicero is your Consul.
I have no urns, no dusty monuments,

TIZ MATEP' AINHZEI:

No broken images of ancestors,

Wanting an ear or nose; no forged tables

Of long descents to boast false honours from,

Or be my undertakers to your trust;

But a new man (as I am styled in Rome)

Whom you have dignified; and more, in whom

You have cut a way, and left it ope for virtue

Hereafter, to that place which our great men

Held shut up with all ramparts for themselves;

Nor have but few of them in time been made

Your Consuls so; new men before me!—none!

G. DE BUTTS.

THE BEGGAR-MAID.

HER arms across her breast she laid,
She was more fair than words can say;
Barefooted came the beggar-maid
Before the king Cophetua.

In robe and crown the king stept down,

To meet and greet her on her way;

'It is no wonder,' said the lords,

'She is more beautiful than day.'

As shines the moon in clouded skies,

She in her poor attire was seen;

One praised her ankles, one her eyes,

One her dark hair, and lovesome mien.

So sweet a face, such angel grace,
In all that land had never been;
Cophetua swore a royal oath,
'This beggar-maid shall be my queen.'

WILL.

O well for him whose will is strong!

He suffers, but he will not suffer long;

He suffers, but he cannot suffer wrong:

For him nor moves the loud world's random mock,

Nor all Calamity's hugest waves confound,

Who seems a promontory of rock,

That compass'd round with turbulent sound,

In middle ocean meets the surging shock,

Tempest-buffeted, citadel-crown'd.

But ill for him who, bettering not with time,
Corrupts the strength of heaven-descended Will,
And ever weaker grows through acted crime,
Or seeming-genial venial fault,
Recurring and suggesting still!
He seems as one whose footsteps halt,
Toiling in immeasurable sand,
And o'er a weary, sultry land,
Far beneath a blazing vault,
Sown in a wrinkle of the monstrous hill,
The city sparkles like a grain of salt.

THE RETURN.

Ion.

HAD I beheld

That sacrilege, Adrastus had lain dead,
Or I had been torn piece-meal by his minions.

But I was far away: when I return'd,
I found my father on the nearest bench
Within our door, his thinly-silver'd head Supported by wan hands, which hid his face

And would not be withdrawn:—no groan, no sigh

Was audible, and we might only learn
By short convulsive tremblings of his frame
That life still flickered in it—yet at last,
By some unearthly inspiration roused,

HASTINGS CROSSLEY

GLOSTER.

Now is the winter of our discontent

Made glorious summer by this sun of York,

And all the clouds that lower'd upon our house

In the deep bosom of the ocean buried.

Now are our brows bound with victorious wreaths,

Our bruisèd arms hung up for monuments,

Our stern alarums changed to merry meetings,

Our dreadful marches to delightful measures. Grim-visaged War hath smooth'd his wrinkled front,

And now—instead of mounting barbed steeds,
To fright the souls of fearful adversaries—
He capers nimbly in a lady's chamber
To the lascivious pleasing of a lute.

PRINCE HENRY.

KING-CHIEF JUSTICE.

- K. You all look strangely on me: and you most;You are, I think, assured I love you not.
- C. J. I am assured, if I be measured rightly,
 Your majesty hath no just cause to hate me.
- K. No?

How might a prince of my great hopes forget So great indignities you laid upon me? What! rate, rebuke, and roughly send to prison

The immediate heir of England! was this easy?

May this be washed in Lethe, and forgotten?

C. J. I then did use the person of your father;
The image of his power lay then in me:
And, in the administration of his law,

EZ TEAOZ EBEAOOTZA AIKH THEP TBPIOZ IZXEI.

Whiles I was busy for the commonwealth,
Your Highness pleased to forget my place,
The majesty and power of law and justice,
The image of the king whom I presented,
And struck me in my very seat of judgement;
Whereon as an offender to your father
I gave bold way to my authority
And did commit you.

DEAD HENRY.

ANNE-RICHARD.

A. O GENTLEMEN, see, see! dead Henry's wounds
Open their congealed mouths and bleed afresh!
Blush, blush, thou lump of foul deformity!
For 'tis thy presence that exhales this blood
From cold and empty veins, where no blood dwells:

Thy deed, inhuman and unnatural, Provokes this deluge most unnatural.

- O God, which this blood mad'st, revenge his death!
- O earth, which this blood drink'st, revenge his death!
- Either heaven with lightning strike the murderer dead,

Or earth, gape open wide, and eat him quick, As thou dost swallow up this good king's blood, Which his hell-governed arm hath butchered!

'THY VOICE IS HEARD.'

Thy voice is heard thro' rolling drums

That beat to battle where he stands;

Thy face across his fancy comes,

And gives the battle to his hands:

A moment, while the trumpets blow,

He sees his brood about thy knee;

The next, like fire, he meets the foe,

And strikes him dead for thine and thee.

TORQUEMADA.

Then this most wretched father went his way
Into the wood that round his castle lay;
Where once his daughters in their childhood
play'd

With their young mother in the sun and shade. Now all the leaves had fallen; the branches bare

Made a perpetual moaning in the air;
And screaming from their eyries overhead,
The ravens sail'd athwart the sky of lead.
With his own hand he lopp'd the boughs, and bound

Faggots that crackled with foreboding sound; And on his mules, caparisoned and gay With bells and tassels, sent them on their way.

CLARIBEL.

Where Claribel low-lieth
The breezes pause and die,
Letting the rose-leaves fall:
But the solemn oak-tree sigheth,
Thick-leaved, ambrosial,
With an ancient melody
Of an inward agony,
Where Claribel low-lieth.
At eve the beetle boometh
Athwart the thicket lone:
At noon the wild bee hummeth
About the moss'd headstone:
At midnight the moon cometh,
And looketh down alone.

THE PASSING OF ARTHUR.

'But now farewell. I am going a long way
With these thou seëst—if indeed I go
(For all my mind is clouded with a doubt)—
To the island valley of Avilion;
Where falls not hail, or rain, or any snow,
Nor ever wind blows loudly; but it lies Deep-meadow'd, happy, fair with orchard lawns

And bowery hollows crown'd with summer sea, Where I will heal me of my grievous wound.'

So said he; and the barge with oar and sail Moved from the brink, like some full-breasted swan

That, fluting a wild carol ere her death, Ruffles her pure cold plume, and takes the flood

With swarthy webs. Long stood Sir Bedivere Revolving many memories, till the hull Look'd one black dot against the verge of dawn.

And on the mere the wailing died away.

EUTHANASIA.

Early wert thou taken, Mary,
In thy fair and glorious prime,
Ere the bees had ceased to murmur
Through the umbrage of the lime.

Buds were blowing, waters flowing, Birds were singing on the tree, Everything was bright and glowing When the angels came for thee.

Death had laid aside his terror,
And he found thee calm and mild,
Lying in thy robes of whiteness,
Like a pure and stainless child.

Hardly had the mountain violet
Spread its blossoms on the sod,
When they laid the turf above thee,
And thy spirit rose to God.

Seem to me all the uses of this world!
Fie on 't! ah, fie! 'tis an unweeded garden
That grows to seed; things rank and gross in Possess it merely. That it should come to this!

That he might not beteem the winds of heaven
Visit her face too roughly. Heaven and earth!

BEAUTY OF A STARLIT NIGHT.

YE quenchless stars! so eloquently bright,
Untroubled sentries of the shadowy night,
While half the world is lapp'd in blissful dreams,

And round the lattice creep your fairy beams,
How sweet to gaze upon those placid eyes
In lambent beauty looking from the skies!
And when, oblivious of the world, we stray
At dead of night along some noiseless way,
How the heart mingles with the moonlit hour,
And feels from heaven a sympathetic power!
See! not a cloud careers yon pathless deep
Of molten azure—mute as lovely sleep;
Full in her pallid light the moon presides,
Shrined in a halo, mellowing as she rides;

ARTHUR TO GUINEVERE.

Liest thou here so low, the child of one
I honour'd, happy, dead before thy shame?
Well is it that no child is born of thee.
The children born of thee are sword and fire,
Red ruin, and the breaking up of laws,
The craft of kindred, and the godless hosts
Of heathen swarming o'er the Northern Sea, Whom I, while yet Sir Launcelot, my right arm,

The mightiest of my knights, abode with me,
Have everywhere about this land of Christ
In twelve great battles ruining overthrown.
And knowest thou now from whence I come—from him,

From waging bitter war with him; and he,

ULYSSES.

DEATH closes all: but something ere the end,
Some work of noble note, may yet be done,
Not unbecoming men that strove with gods.
The lights begin to twinkle from the rocks:
The long day wanes: the slow moon climbs:
the deep

Moans round with many voices. Come, my friends,

'Tis not too late to seek a newer world.

Push off, and, sitting well in order, smite

The sounding furrows; for my purpose holds

To sail beyond the sunset and the baths

Of all the western stars, until I die.

It may be that the gulfs will wash us down:

It may be we shall touch the Happy isles,

And see the great Achilles, whom we knew.

VIVIEN'S TENDER RHYME.

In Love, if Love be Love, if Love be ours, Faith and unfaith can ne'er be equal powers; Unfaith in aught is want of faith in all.

It is the little rift within the lute
That by-and-bye will make the music mute,
And ever widening slowly silence all.

The little rift within the lover's lute;
Or little pitted speck in garner'd fruit,
Which rotting inward slowly moulders all.

It is not worth the keeping: let it go:
But shall it? answer, darling, answer, No.
And trust me not at all or all in all.

CUPID'S REVENGE.

LEUCIPPUS, thou art shot through with a shaft
That will not rankle long, yet sharp enough
To sow a world of helpless misery
In this unhappy kingdom. Dost thou think,
Because thou art a prince, to make a part
Against my power? But it is all the fault
Of thy old father, who believes his age
Is cold enough to quench my burning darts.
But he shall know ere long that my dart loose
Can thaw ice, and inflame the wither'd heart
Of Nestor. Thou thyself art lightly struck;
But his mad love shall publish that the rage
Of Cupid has the power to conquer age.

Vom Lichte, jedes glückliche Geschöpf—
Die Pflanze selbst kehrt freudig sich zum Lichte.
Und er muss sitzen, fühlend, in der Nacht,
Im ewig Finstern—ihn erquickt nicht mehr
Der Matten warmes Grün, der Blumen Schmelz,
Die rothen Firnen kann er nicht mehr schauen—
Sterben ist nichts—doch leben und nicht sehen,
Das ist ein Unglück—Warum seht ihr mich

Und kann dem blinden Vater keines geben,

- B. This is no answer, thou unfeeling man, To excuse the current of thy cruelty.
- S. I am not bound to please thee with my answer.
- B. Do all men kill the things they do not love?
- S. Hates any man the thing he would not kill?
- B. Every offence is not a hate at first.
- S. What, would'st thou have a serpent sting thee twice?
- A. I pray you, think you question with the Jew:
 You may as well go stand upon the beach
 And bid the main flood bate his usual height;
 You may as well use question with the wolf
 Why he hath made the ewe bleat for the lamb;
 You may as well forbid the mountain pines
 To wag their high tops and to make no noise,
 When they are fretten with the gusts of heaven;
 You may as well do anything most hard,

As seek to soften that—than which what's harder?—

His Jewish heart: therefore, I do beseech you, Make no more offers, use no farther means, But with all brief and plain conveniency Let me have judgement, and the Jew his will.

- B. For thy three thousand ducats here is six.
- S. If every ducat in six thousand ducatsWere in six parts, and every part a ducat,I would not draw them; I would have my bond.
- D. How shalt thou hope for mercy, rendering none?
- S. What judgement shall I dread, doing no wrong? You have among you many a purchased slave, Which like your asses, and your dogs and mules, You use in abject and in slavish parts, Because you bought them: shall I say to you, Let them be free, marry them to your heirs? Why sweat they under burdens? let their beds Be made as soft as yours, and let their palates Be season'd with such viands? You will answer, 'The slaves are ours': so do I answer you: The pound of flesh, which I demand of him, Is dearly bought; 'tis mine and I will have it.

If you deny me, fie upon your law!

There is no force in the decrees of Venice.

I stand for judgment: answer; shall I have it?

- D. Upon my power I may dismiss this court,
 Unless Bellario, a learned doctor,
 Whom I have sent for to determine this,
 Come here to-day.
- S. My lord, here stays without A messenger with letters from the doctor, New come from Padua.
- D. Bring us the letters; call the messenger.
- B. Good cheer, Antonio! What, man, courage yet!

The Jew shall have my flesh, blood, bones, and all.

Ere thou shalt lose for me one drop of blood.

A. I am a tainted wether of the flock,

Meetest for death: the weakest kind of fruit

Drops earliest to the ground; and so let me:

You cannot better be employ'd, Bassanio,

Than to live still and write mine epitaph.

LA GUENON, LE SINGE, ET LA NOIX.

Une noix dans sa coque verte;

Elle y porte la dent, fait la grimace, Ah! certe,

Dit-elle, ma mère mentit

Quand elle m'assura que les noix étoient bonnes.

Puis, croyez aux discours de ces vieilles personnes

Qui trompent la jeunesse! Au diable soit le fruit!

Elle jette la noix. Un singe la ramasse,

Vite entre deux cailloux la casse.

Vite entre deux cailloux la casse, L'épluche, la mange, et lui dit:

Votre mère eut raison, ma mie, Les noix ont fort bon goût; mais il faut les ouvrir.

Souvenez-vous que, dans la vie, Sans un peu de travail on n'a point de plaisir.

THE AMBUSCADE.

But I remember:

Two miles on this side of the fort, the road
Crosses a deep ravine; 'tis rough and narrow
And winds with short turns down the precipice,
And in its depth there is a mighty rock,
Which has, from unimaginable years,
Sustain'd itself with terror and with toil
Over a gulf, and, with the agony
With which it clings, seems slowly coming down;
Even as a wretched soul, hour after hour,
Clings to the mass of life; yet, clinging, leans;
And, leaning, makes more dark the dread abyss
In which it fears to fall: beneath this crag,
Huge as despair, as if in weariness,
The melancholy mountain yawns—below

You hear, but see not, an impetuous torrent
Raging among the caverns, and a bridge
Crosses the chasm; and high above there grow,
With intersecting trunks, from crag to crag,
Cedars, and yews, and pines; whose tangled hair
Is matted in one solid roof of shade
By the dark ivy's twine.

MAX CULLINAN.

'THOU WAST NOT BORN TO DIE, IMMORTAL BIRD.'

As Saint Kevin he was walkin'
By the lake of Glendalough,
'Twas then he met with King O'Toole,
An' he ask'd him for a shaugh.
Says the King, 'You're but a sthranger,
Sure yer face I niver seen,
But if ye've got a taste of weed,
I'll lend ye my dhudeen.'

As the Saint was kindlin' up the pipe,

The Monarch heaved a sigh.

Says the Saint, 'What ails ye, King O'Toole,

And are ye goin' to cry?'

Says the King, 'I had a gandher

That was given me by my mother,

But yesterday he cock'd his toe,

Wid some disease or other.'

XHN OT AOEHE AXHN.

'Are ye cryin' for your gandher,
You unfortunate ould goose?
Dhry up yer tears, stop cryin', man,
In that there is no use;
But see here, what will you give me
If yer gandher I revive?'
Says the King, 'I'll be yer sarvint

Says the Saint, 'You're mighty civil,
But civility is cheap,

All the days that I'm alive.'

An' I'd sooner have a taste of land, To pasture my poor sheep.

Now I'll revive yer gandher,

And make him whole and sound,
If you'll give me just the bit of land
The gandher flies around.'

So the King went to his palace,
In haste to fetch the bird,
Though he hadn't the laste intintion, mind ye,
Of stickin' to his word.

When the bird came from the palace,
The Saint took him from the King,
And first he touch'd him on the beak,
And then he stroked his wing.

He whisk'd him high into the air;
He flew thirty miles around:
Says the Saint, 'I'll thank yer Highness,
For that little taste of ground.'
Then the King flew in a passion,
And he called the Saint a witch,
And sent off for his six big sons,
To throw him in the ditch.

'Nabocklish!' cried Saint Kevin,
'I'll soon settle them young urchins;'
So he turn'd the King and his six sons
Into the Seven Churches.

- He. My dearest love, since thou wilt go,
 And leave me here behind thee,
 For love or pity let me know
 The place where I may find thee.
- She. In country meadows pearled with dew,
 And set about with lilies,
 There filling maunds with cowslips you
 May find your Amaryllis.
- He. What have the meads to do with thee
 And with thy youthful hours?
 Live thou at court, where thou mayst be
 The queen of men, not flowers.
 Let country wenches make 'em fine
 With roses, since 'tis fitter
 For thee with richest gems to shine,
 And like the stars to glitter.

'THE PICCOLOMINI' OF SCHILLER.

COUNTESS.

Thou see'st it with a lovelorn maiden's eyes. Cast thine eye round, bethink thee who thou art. Into no house of joyance hast thou stepp'd, For no espousals dost thou find the walls Deck'd out, no guests the nuptial garland wearing. Here is no splendour but of arms. Or think'st thou That all these thousands here are congregated To lead up the long dances at thy wedding! Thou see'st thy father's forehead full of thought, Thy mother's eye in tears; upon the balance Lies the great destiny of all our house. Leave now the puny wish, the girlish feeling: Not to herself the woman must belong, Annex'd and bound to alien destinies. But she performs the best part, she the wisest, Who can transmute the alien into self. Meet and disarm necessity by choice; And what must be, take freely to her heart, And bear and foster it with mother's love.

A LITTLE LOWER THAN THE ANGELS.

HAMLET.

I have of late (but wherefore I know not) lost all my mirth, foregone all custom of exercises; and, indeed, it goes so heavily with my disposition, that this goodly frame, the earth, seems to me a steril promontory; this most excellent canopy, the air, look you—this brave o'erhanging firmament—this majestical roof fretted with golden fire—why, it appears no other thing to me than a foul and pestilent congregation of vapours. What a piece of work is man! how noble in reason! how infinite in faculty! in form and moving, how express and admirable! in action, how like an angel! in apprehension, how like a god!

ELOISA TO ABELARD.

Repentant sighs, and voluntary pains:
Ye rugged rocks! which holy knees have worn;
Ye grots and caverns, shagg'd with horrid thorn!
Shrines! where their vigils pale-eyed virgins keep;
And pitying saints, whose statues learn to weep!
Though cold like you, unmoved and silent grown,
I have not yet forgot myself to stone.
All is not Heaven's while Abelard has part,
Still rebel nature holds out half my heart;
Nor prayers, nor fasts, its stubborn pulse restrain,
Nor tears, for ages taught to flow in vain.
Soon as thy letters trembling I unclose,
That well-known name awakens all my woes.

Oh, name for ever sad! for ever dear!

Still breathed in sighs, still usher'd with a tear.

I tremble, too, where'er my own I find,

Some dire misfortune follows close behind.

Line after line my gushing eyes o'erflow,

Led through a sad variety of woe;

Now warm in love, now withering in my bloom,

Lost in a convent's solitary gloom:

There stern religion quench'd the unwilling flame;

There died the best of passions, Love and Fame.

LAUNCELOT DOWDALL.

FLODDEN FIELD.

But as they left the darkening heath,
More desperate grew the strife of death.
The English shafts in volleys hail'd,
The horse in headlong charge assail'd,
Front, flank, and rear the squadrons sweep
To break the Scottish circle deep,

That fought around their king;
Though thick the English shafts as snow,
Though charging knights like whirlwinds go,
Though billmen ply the ghastly blow,

Unbroken was the ring.

The stubborn spearmen still made good Their dark, impenetrable wood, Each stepping where his comrade stood,

The instant that he fell:

No thought was there of coward flight, Link'd in the serried phalanx tight, Groom fought like noble, squire like knight,

As fearlessly and well;

Till utter darkness closed her wing O'er their thin host and wounded king.

TOM BOWLING.

Here a sheer hulk lies poor Tom Bowling,
The darling of our crew;
No more he'll hear the tempest howling,
For Death has broach'd him to.
His form was of the manliest beauty,
His heart was kind and soft,
Faithful below he did his duty,
But now he's gone aloft.

Tom never from his word departed:

His virtues were so rare:

His friends were many and true-hearted:

His Poll was kind and fair.

And then he'd sing so blithe and jolly,

Ah! many's the time and oft!

But mirth is turned to melancholy,

For Tom is gone aloft.

ΕΥΔΕ, ΦΙΛΑ ΨΥΧΑ.

όλκὰς ἄτ' ἀμφίκλαστος 'Αμύντιχος ἐνθάδε κεῖται' όμμ' ήν είρεσίης καὶ φάος ήμετέρης λαίλαπος οὐκ ὀλοῆς ἔτ' ἀκούσεται ἄσπετον ἡχήν, ι παραβέβληκεν την ακατον θάνατος. έπρεπεν είναλίοισιν έν ανδράσιν όψις αγήνωρ. ήπιον αίεν έφυ μειλίχιόν τε κέαρ ένθάδε πάντα καλώς πράξας, τὸν δεύτατον ήδη ές μακάρων νήσους έξεπέρησε πλόον. ούχ άνηρ άλίωσεν ὑπόσχεσιν, ηνπερ ὑπέστη, τόσσον έλαμψ' άρεταις έξοχα θαυμασίαις. πολλοίς καὶ κεδυοίς πεφιλημένος ἔπλετ' ἔτησιν, τὸν δ' ἔστερξε λίην ἡ χαρίεσσα Χλόη. ασματα γηθοσύνω θαμά τοι λαθικηδέα φωνή μυρί' αν ήειδεν πασι χαράν παρέχων. φρούδη δ' εὐφροσύνη, καὶ ὅρωρεν πένθος ἄλαστον, ές μακάρων νήσους ώς έπέρησε πλόον.

Yet shall poor Tom find pleasant weather,
When He, who all commands,
Shall give, to call life's crew together,
The word to pipe all hands.
Thus Death, who kings and tars despatches,
In vain Tom's life has doff'd,
For though his body 's under hatches,
His soul is gone aloft.

R. I. P.

Strew on her roses, roses,

But never a spray of yew;

In silence she reposes—

Ah, would that I did too!

Her mirth the world required,

She bathed them in smiles and glee;
But her heart was tired, tired;

And now they let her be.

Her life was turning, turning,
In mazes of light and sound;
But for peace her soul was yearning,
And now peace laps her round.

Her cabin'd, ample spirit

Panted and strove for breath;

To-night it doth inherit

The vasty halls of death.

- F. This is strange: your father's in some passion

 That works him strongly.
- M. Never till this day
 Saw I him touch'd with anger so distemper'd.
- P. You do look, my son, in a mov'd sort
 As if you were dismayed: be cheerful, sir:
 Our revels now are ended: these our actors,
 As I foretold you, were all spirits, and
 Are melted into air, into thin air:
 And like the baseless fabric of this vision,
 The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
 The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
 Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve,
 And, like this unsubstantial pageant faded,
 Leave not a rack behind. We are such stuff

SISTER HELEN.

'Why did you melt your waxen man, Sister Helen?

To-day is the third since you began.'

'The time was long, yet the time ran, Little brother.'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Three days to-day, between Hell and Heaven!)

'But if you have done your work aright, Sister Helen,

You'll let me play, for you said I might.'

'Be very still in your play to-night, Little brother.'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Third night to-night, between Hell and Heaven!)

'You said it must melt ere vesper-bell, Sister Helen;

If now it be molten, all is well.'

'Even so,—nay, peace! you cannot tell, Little brother.'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

O what is this, between Hell and Heaven?)

'Oh the waxen knave was plump to-day, Sister Helen;

How like dead folk he has dropped away!'

'Nay now, of the dead what can you say, Little brother?'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

What of the dead, between Hell and Heaven?)

'See, see, the sunken pile of wood, Sister Helen,

Shines through the thinned wax red as blood!'

'Nay now, when looked you yet on blood, Little brother?'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

How pale she is, between Hell and Heaven!)

'Now close your eyes, for they're sick and sore, Sister Helen,

And I'll play without the gallery door.'

'Aye, let me rest—I'll lie on the floor, Little brother.'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

What rest to-night, between Hell and Heaven?)

'Here high up in the balcony, Sister Helen,

The moon flies face to face with me.'

'Aye, look and say whatever you see, Little brother.'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

What sight to-night, between Hell and Heaven?)

'Outside it's merry in the wind's wake, Sister Helen,

In the shaken trees the chill stars shake.'

'Hush, heard you a horse-tread as you spake, Little brother?'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

What sound to-night between Hell and Heaven?)

'The wind is loud, but I hear him' cry, Sister Helen,

That Keith of Ewern's like to die.'

'And he and thou, and thou and I, Little brother.'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

And they and we, between Hell and Heaven!)

'For three days now he has lain a-bed, Sister Helen,

And he prays in torment to be dead.'

'The thing may chance if he has prayed, Little brother!'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

If he has prayed, between Hell and Heaven!)

[•] The brother of Keith of Ewern: he has come to implore Helen's for-giveness.

- ' πάντα δοκεῖ σκιρτῆν γαθεῦντ' ἀνέμοιο κατ' ἴχνος,

'He sends a ring and a broken coin, Sister Helen,

And bids you mind the banks of Boyne.'

'What else he broke will he ever join, Little brother?'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Oh, never more, between Hell and Heaven!)

'He yields you these, and craves full fain, Sister Helen,

You pardon him in his mortal pain.'

'What else he took will he give again, Little brother?'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

No more, no more, between Hell and Heaven!)

'O sister Helen, you heard the bell, Sister Helen!

More loud than the vesper-chime it fell.'

'No vesper-chime, but a dying knell, Little brother!'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

His dying knell, between Hell and Heaven!)

- ' πέμπει μὰν πέπλω περόναν καὶ δακτύλιον τίν, κὼχθαν μεμνασθαι ταν Καφισω τυ κελεύει.'
- 'τίς περόνα ζωνὰν άψει πάλιν, αν δ γ' ἔλυσεν;'

 τίς ποκα τοιαύταν τεύξειέ κε, πότνα Σελάνα;
- ' ταῦτ' ἀπὸ νῦν τὶν δοὺς δεῖταί σεο πόλλ' ἱκετεύων φθειρομένω λυγραῖσιν ἔχειν ἔθεν οἶκτον ἀνίαις.'
- ' ἢ καὶ τἄλλ' ὄσα οἱ κεχαρίσμεθα νῦν ἀποδωσεῖ;'
 οὐχ, Ἑκάτα δασπλῆτι, τά γ' οὐκ ἀπό τις ποκα

- ' οὐκ εἰς ἱρὰ καλεῖ, θανάτω δ' ὡς ἄγγελος ἀχεῖ.'
 ἀχεῖ δὴ τήνῳ θαναταφόρα, πότνα Σελάνα.

'O the wind is sad in the iron chill, Sister Helen,

And weary and sad they look by the hill.'

'But he and I are sadder still,

Little brother!'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Most sad of all, between Hell and Heaven!)

'See, see, the wax has dropped from its place, Sister Helen,

And the flames are winning up apace!'

'Yet here they burn but for a space,

Little brother!'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Here for a space, between Hell and Heaven!)

'Ah! what white thing at the door has cross'd, Sister Helen?

Ah! what is this that sighs in the frost?'

'A soul that's lost as mine is lost,

Little brother!'

(O Mother, Mary Mother,

Lost, lost, all lost, between Hell and Heaven!)

TOUT LASSE, TOUT PASSE, TOUT CASSE.

The flower that smiles to-day

To-morrow dies:

All that we wish to stay

Tempts, and then flies;
What is this world's delight?
Lightning that mocks the night,
Brief even as bright.

Virtue, how frail it is!

Friendship too rare!

Love, how it sells poor bliss

For proud despair!

But we, though soon they fall,

Survive their joy and all

Which ours we call.

No sudden mean of death, though ne'er so mean, But—banished—to kill me; banished?

O friar, the damned use that word in hell; Howlings attend it. How hast thou the heart, Being a divine, a ghostly confessor, A sin-absolver, and my friend profess'd, To mangle me with that word—banished?

- F. Thou fond mad man, hear me a little speak.
- R. O, thou wilt speak again of banishment.
- F. I'll give thee armour to keep off that word; Adversity's sweet milk, philosophy, To comfort thee, though thou art banished.

 Unless philosophy can make a Juliet,

 Displant a town, reverse a prince's doom;

 It helps not, it prevails not; talk no more.

BATTLE OF THE LAKE REGILLUS.

Then tenfold round the body

The roar of battle rose,

Like the roar of a burning forest

When a strong north wind blows.

Now backward, and now forward,

Rocked furiously the fray,

Till none could see Valerius,

And none wist where he lay.

For shivered arms and ensigns

Were heaped there in a mound,

And corpses stiff, and dying men

That writhed and gnawed the ground;

And wounded horses kicking,

And snorting purple foam:

Right well did such a couch befit

A consular of Rome.

'HOW ARE THE MIGHTY FALLEN!'

THE beauty of Israel is slain upon thy high places: How are the mighty fallen!

Tell it not in Gath, publish it not in the streets of Askelon; lest the daughters of the Philistines rejoice, lest the daughters of the uncircumcised triumph.

Ye mountains of Gilboa, let there be no dew, neither let there be rain, upon you, nor fields of offerings: for there the shield of the mighty is vilely cast away, the shield of Saul, as though he had not been anointed with oil.

Saul and Jonathan were lovely in their lives, and in their death they were not divided. . . .

How are the mighty fallen, and the weapons of war perished!

Meine Ruh' ist hin,

Mein Herz ist schwer,
Ich finde sie nimmer

Und nimmermehr.

Wo ich ihn nicht hab',
Ist mir das Grab,
Die ganze Welt
Ist mir vergällt.

Mein armer Kopf
Ist mir verrückt,
Mein armer Sinn
Ist mir zerstückt.

Nach ihm nur schau' ich Zum Fenster hinaus, Nach ihm nur geh' ich Aus dem Haus. ΧΩΣ ΙΔΟΝ, ΩΣ ΕΜΑΝΗΝ, ΩΣ ΜΟΙ ΠΥΡΙ ΘΥΜΟΣ ΙΑΦΘΗ.

Ach, dürft' ich fassen
Und halten ihn!

Und küssen ihn, So wie ich wollt', An seinen Küssen Vergehen sollt'!

CALIBAN.

ABHORRED slave,

Which any print of goodness wilt not take
Being capable of all ill! I pitied thee, Took pains to make thee speak, taught thee each hour

One thing or other: when thou didst not, savage, Know thine own meaning, but wouldst gabble like
A thing most brutish, I endowed thy purposes
With words that made them known. But thy vile race,

Though thou didst learn, had that in 't which good natures

Could not abide to be with; therefore wast thou Deservedly confined into this rock, Who hadst deserved more than a prison.

THREE children sliding on the ice,
All on a summer's day,
As it fell out, they all fell in,
The rest they ran away.

Now, had these children been at school,
Or sliding on dry ground,
Ten thousand pounds to one penny,
They had not all been drown'd.

You parents that have children dear,
And eke you that have none,
If you will have them safe abroad,
Pray keep them safe at home.

KATHERINE AND PETRUCHIO.

- P. Come on, i' God's name: once more toward our father's.
 - Good Lord, how bright and goodly shines the moon!
- K. The moon! the sun: it is not moonlight now.
- P. I say it is the moon that shines so bright.
- K. I know it is the sun that shines so bright.
- P. Now, by my mother's son, and that's myself,
 It shall be moon, or star, or what I list,
 Or ere I journey to your father's house.
 Go on, and fetch our horses back again.
 Evermore cross'd and cross'd: nothing but cross'd.
- H. Say as he says, or we shall never go.
- K. Forward, I pray, since we have come so far, And be it moon, or sun, or what you please:

ΠΑΝΤΑ ΣΥΜΦΕΡΟΥΣ' ΙΑΣΟΝΙ.

- Π. πρὸς θεῶν σπεύδωμεν ἐγκονῶμεν ἐς πατρὸς δόμον.ἄ φίλε Ζεῦ καὶ θεοί, τὸ χρῆμα τῆς μήνης ὅσον.

An' if you please to call it a rush-candle, Henceforth I vow it shall be so for me.

- P. I say it is the moon.
- K. I know it is the moon.
- P. Nay, then, you lie: it is the blessed sun.
- K. Then, God be bless'd, it is the blessed sun:
 But the sun it is not, when you say it is not;
 And the moon changes even as your mind.
 What you will have it named, even that it is;
 And so it shall be so for Katherine.

TIMON OF ATHENS.

- T. Commend me to my loving countrymen—
- S. These words become your lips as they pass through them,

And enter in our ears like great triumphers In their applauding gates.

T. Commend me to them,
And tell them that, to ease them of their griefs,
Their fears of hostile strokes, their aches, losses,
Their pangs of love, with other incident throes
That nature's fragile vessel doth sustain
In life's uncertain voyage, I will some kindness do them:

I'll teach them to prevent wild Alcibiades' wrath.

- S. I like this well; he will return again.
- T. I have a tree, which grows here in my close, That mine own use invites me to cut down, And shortly must I fell it: tell my friends,

KEPTOMA BAZON.

- Τ. φίλοις πολίταις εὐμενη μ' εἶναι φράσον.

Tell Athens, in the sequence of degree
From high to low throughout, that whoso please
To stop affliction, let him take his haste,
Come hither, ere my tree hath felt the axe,
And hang himself. I pray you, do my greeting.

- F. Trouble him no further: thus you still shall find him.
- T. Come not to me again: but say to Athens,

 Timon hath made his everlasting mansion

 Upon the beached verge of the salt flood;

 Who once a day with his embossed froth

 The turbulent surge shall cover: thither come,

 And let my grave-stone be your oracle.

ALL SAINTS' DAY.

And after these things I saw four angels standing on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth, that the wind should not blow on the earth, nor on the sea, nor on any tree.

And I saw another angel ascending from the east, having the seal of the living God: and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth and the sea,

Saying, Hurt not the earth, neither the sea, nor the trees, till we have sealed the servants of our God in their foreheads.

WILLKOMMEN, schöner Jüngling!
Du Wonne der Natur!
Mit deinem Blumenkörbehen
Willkommen auf der Flur!

Ei! Ei! da bist ja wieder!

Und bist so lieb und schön!

Und freun wir uns so herzlich,

Entgegen dir zu gehn.

Denkst auch noch an mein Mädchen?
Ei, Lieber, denke doch!
Dort liebte mich das Mädchen,
Und 's Mädchen liebt mich noch!

Fürs Mädchen manches Blümchen
Erbat ich mir von dir—
Ich komm und bitte wieder,
Und du?—du gibst es mir.

Willkommen, schöner Jüngling!
Du Wonne der Natur!
Mit deinem Blumenkörbehen
Willkommen auf der Flur!

MACBETH DOES MURDER SLEEP, THE INNOCENT SLEEP.

Q. How now, my lord? why do you keep alone,
Of sorriest fancies your companions making?
Using those thoughts which should indeed have died

With them they think on. Things without all remedy

Should be without regard: what's done is done.

K. We have scotch'd the snake, not kill'd it;

She'll close, and be herself; whilst our poor malice

Remains in danger of her former tooth.

But let the frame of things disjoint, both the worlds suffer,

Ere we will eat our meal in fear, and sleep In the affliction of these terrible dreams, That shake us nightly: better be with the dead,

ΟΙ ΑΥΤΩΙ ΚΑΚΑ ΤΕΥΧΕΙ ΑΝΗΡ ΑΛΛΩΙ ΚΑΚΑ ΤΕΥΧΩΝ.

Whom we, to gain our peace, have sent to peace,

Than on the torture of the mind to lie

In restless ecstasy. Duncan is in his grave;

After life's fitful fever he sleeps well;

Treason has done its worst: nor steel, nor poison,

Malice domestic, foreign levy, nothing, Can touch him further.

ELOISA TO ABELARD.

In these deep solitudes and awful cells, Where heavenly-pensive contemplation dwells, And ever-musing melancholy reigns, What means this tumult in a vestal's veins? Why rove my thoughts beyond this last retreat? Why feels my heart its long-forgotten heat? Yet, yet I love! From Abelard it came, And Eloisa yet must kiss the name. Dear fatal name! rest ever unreveal'd, Nor pass these lips in holy silence seal'd: Hide it, my heart, within that close disguise Where, mix'd with God's, his loved idea lies: Oh, write it not, my hand !—the name appears Already written—wash it out, my tears! In vain lost Eloisa weeps and prays, Her heart still dictates, and her hand obeys.

 For which I live your creature, and have better'd

 What Nature framed imperfect. My first being Insolent pride made monstrous, but this later
 In learning me to know myself hath taught me
 Not to wrong others.
- Do. Then we live indeed
 When we can go to rest without alarum
 Given every minute to a guilt-sick conscience
 To keep us waking, and rise in the morning Secure in being innocent; but when
 In the remembrance of our worser actions
 We ever bear about us whips and Furies,
 To make the day a night of sorrow to us,
 Even Life's a burden.
- Du. I have found and felt it;
 But will endeavour, having first made peace
 With these intestine enemies, my rude passions,
 To be so with mankind.

IF IT WERE DONE, WHEN 'TIS DONE.

It were done, when 'tis done, then 'twere well
It were done quickly: if the assassination
Could trammel up the consequence, and catch
With his surcease success; that but this blow
Might be the be-all and the end-all, here.
But here, upon this bank and shoal of time,
We'd jump the life to come. But in these cases,
We still have judgment here; that we but teach
Bloody inventions, which, being taught, return
To plague the inventor.

PSALM CIV.

O worship the King, all-glorious above;
O gratefully sing His power and His love;
Our Shield and Defender, the Ancient of days,
Pavilion'd in splendour, and girded with praise.

O tell of His might, O sing of His grace,
Whose robe is the light, whose canopy space;
His chariots of wrath deep thunder-clouds form,
And dark is His path on the wings of the storm.

The earth with its store of wonders untold,
Almighty, Thy power hath founded of old,
Hath 'stablished it fast by a changeless decree,
And round it hath cast, like a mantle, the sea.

ΘΕΟΣ ΠΡΟΣΩΘΕΝ ΕΥΜΕΝΩΣ ΠΡΟΣΔΕΡΚΕΤΑΙ.

Thy bountiful care what tongue can recite?

It breathes in the air, it shines in the light;

It streams from the hills, it descends to the plain,

And sweetly distils in the dew and the rain.

Frail children of dust, and feeble as frail,
In Thee do we trust, nor find Thee to fail:
Thy mercies how tender! how firm to the end
Our Maker, Defender, Redeemer and Friend.

ARISTODEMUS.

- M. WHITHER away so fast, Aristodemus?
- A. To find Callicrates, and tell him all.
- M. Callicrates stands here, awaiting sentence.

 The gods, who knew, delay'd him till thou camest.
- A. Speak to thy friend, Callicrates!
- C. Speak thou.

 My lips are seal'd from speaking: yet I listen.
- A. Hear then the truth, O Minos, and thou, friend, Whose love was dearer to my soul than life! It was midsummer at Thermopylae,
 Where we three hundred with our lion king
 Lay in the Straits awaiting what should happen.
 Then did the captain send me forth to seek
 A privy passage through Trachinian hills:
 For I was first of runners, stoutest-soul'd,
 Men said, of athletes; and the love I bore

Callicrates had crown'd my name with honour. So I, thus bidden, girt me; and could see, Running, the vast barbarian host aflood From sea-beach unto hill-side, toward our host Surging, that rock-like rose to stem the tide. But I the mountains clove. A dry white gorge Mid towering crags received me, and I ran Hour after hour; until what time the noon Flamed in mid ether, and my strength was minish'd.

I came unto a barren scaur up-raised
Heaven-high above me. At its feet a pool Lay slumbering, smooth and blue as polish'd steel,

Broad each way as the temple steps that front Queen Hera's shrine in Argos: and therefrom Gush'd a full stream pellucid-froth'd, and fill'd Its rocky runlet down the mountain side, Mid myrtles trembling a thin silver thread.

There on my knees I bow'd, and lean'd, and drew

Draughts that refresh'd my spirit, while above Burn'd summer, and my brain with heat was heavy. There stood between me and the myrtle-boughs,
In blood-red chlamys like a boy array'd,
One on whose lips persuasion sat, whose eyes
Flamed fiercer than the light of summer noon.
He in his hands forth stretch'd a pomegranate,
Ripe, ruddy to the core, and smiled, and said,
'If thou would'st see Callicrates alive,
Eat this!' Then I, who long had served love well,

Cried: 'Even so, Lord Erôs.' For I knew
How Pan unto Pheidippides vouchsafed,
Mid vales Arcadian, speech, what time he ran
From Athens to fair Sparta, night and day;
And in my soul I deem'd that love had deign'd
To smile on Hellas. So I took and ate
That cursèd fruit. Therewith deep slumber fell Upon my drowsèd eyes.

THE DAY OF THE LORD.

STRENGTHEN ye the feeble hands, And confirm the tottering knees; Say ye to the faint-hearted—Be ye strong: Fear ye not; behold your God! He Himself will come, and will deliver you. Then shall be unclosed the eyes of the blind; The ears of the deaf shall be unstopp'd; Then shall the lame bound like a hart, And the tongue of the dumb shall sing, For in the wilderness shall burst forth waters. And torrents in the desert: And in the haunt of the dragon shall spring forth The grass, with the reed and the bulrush. No lion shall be there, nor any ravenous beast: But the redeemed shall dwell there: And the ransom'd of the Lord shall return, And come to Zion with songs and everlasting joy: They shall obtain joy and gladness, And sorrow and sighing shall flee away.

Well, though it torture me, 'tis but the same;

My pang shall find a voice. From my youth upwards

My spirit walk'd not with the souls of men,
Nor look'd upon the earth with human eyes;
The thirst of their ambition was not mine,
The aim of their existence was not mine;
My joys, my griefs, my passions, and my powers,
Made me a stranger; though I wore the form,
I had no sympathy with breathing flesh,
Nor midst the creatures of clay that girded me
Was there but one who—but of her anon.
I said, with men and with the thoughts of men,
I held but slight communion; but instead,

My joy was in the wilderness—to breathe
The difficult air of the iced mountain's top,
Where the birds dare not build, nor insect's wing
Flit o'er the herbless granite; or to plunge
Into the torrent, and to roll along
On the swift whirl of the new breaking wave
Of river stream, or ocean, in their flow.
In these my early strength exulted.

THE KING'S SOLILOQUY.

What if this cursed hand Were thicker than itself with brother's blood? Is there not rain enough in the sweet heav'ns To wash it white as snow? whereto serves mercy But to confront the visage of offence? And what's in prayer, but this twofold force, To be forestalled ere we come to fall, Or pardon'd being down? Then I'll look up; My fault is past. But oh, what form of prayer Can serve my turn? Forgive me my foul murder! That cannot be, since I am still possess'd Of those effects for which I did the murder. My crown, mine own ambition, and my Queen. May one be pardon'd, and retain th' offence? In the corrupted currents of this world, Offence's gilded hand may shove by justice;

And oft 'tis seen, the wicked prize itself
Buys out the laws. But 'tis not so above.
There is no shuffling; there the action lies
In his true nature, and we ourselves compell'd,
Ev'n to the teeth and forehead of our faults,
To give in evidence. What then? what rests?
Try what repentance can? what can it not?
Yet what can it, when one cannot repent?
O wretched state! oh bosom black as death!
Oh limèd soul, that, struggling to be free,
Art more engaged! Help, angels! make assay!
Bow, stubborn knees; and, heart, with strings of steel,

Be soft as sinews of the new-born babe! All may be well.

THERE was a king in Thulé,

And he loved an humble maid,

And she, who loved him truly,

When she came to her death-bed,

A golden cup she gave him,
Which none could better prize;
And ever as he drank of it,
Tears dimm'd his flowing eyes.

And when he came to die,

To his heirs his wealth he told;

Left all without a sigh

But his mistress' cup of gold.

As at the royal banquet
Among his knights sate he,
In the high hall of his fathers,
In their fortress o'er the sea,

I have tired myself, and for two nights together

Have made the ground my bed. I should be sick,

But that my resolution helps me. Milford,

When from the mountain-top Pisanio show'd thee,

Thou wast within a ken: O Jove! I think

Foundations fly the wretched; such, I mean,

Where they should be relieved. Two beggars

I could not miss my way: will poor folks lie,
That have afflictions on them, knowing 'tis
A punishment or trial? Yes; no wonder,
When rich ones scarce tell true. To lapse in fulness

Is sorer than to lie for need, and falsehood

At point to sink for food. But what is this?

Here is a path to't: 'tis some savage hold:

I were best not call; I dare not call: yet famine,

Ere clean it o'erthrow nature, makes it valiant.

Plenty and peace breeds cowards: hardness ever

Of hardiness is mother. Ho! who's here?

If anything that's civil, speak; if savage,

Take or lend. Ho! No answer? Then I'll enter.

Best draw my sword; and if mine enemy

But fear the sword like me, he'll scarcely look

This shalt thou

Sustain not, nor thy son endure to see, Nor thou to live and look on: for the womb Bare me not base that bare me miserable, To hear this loud brood of the Thracian foam Break its broad strength of billowy-beating war Here, and upon it as a blast of death Blowing, the keen wrath of a fire-soul'd king, A strange growth grafted on our natural soil, A root of Thrace in Eleusinian earth Set for no comfort to the kindly land, Son of the sea's lord and our first-born fire, Eumolpus! Nothing sweet in ears of thine The music of his making, nor a song Toward hopes of ours auspicious; for the note Rings as for death oracular to thy sons, That goes before him on the sea-wind blown

Full of this charge laid on me, to put out The brief light kindled of mine own child's life, Or with this helmsman-hand that steers the state Run right on the under-shoal and ridge of death The populous ship with all its fraughtage gone, And sails that were to take the wind of time Rent, and the tackling that should hold out fast In confluent surge of loud calamities Broken, with spars of rudders and lost oars That were to row toward harbour and find rest In some most glorious haven of all the world, And else may never near it: such a song The gods have set his lips on fire withal Who threatens now, in all their names, to bring Ruin; but none of these, thou knowest, have I Chid with my tongue or cursed at heart for grief, Knowing how the soul runs reinless on sheer death Whose grief or joy takes part against the gods.

Make no deep scrutiny
Into her mutiny,
Rash and undutiful.
Past all dishonour,
Death has left on her
Only the beautiful.
Still, for all slips of hers,
One of Eve's family;
Wipe those poor lips of hers
Oozing so clammily.
Loop up her tresses
Escaped from the comb,
Her fair auburn tresses!
While wonderment guesses
Where was her home?

JULIET'S WEDDING-DAY.

- F. Come, is the bride ready to go to church?
- C. Ready to go, but never to return;
 O son, the night before thy wedding-day
 Hath death lain with thy wife:—there she lies,
 Flower as she was, deflowered by him.
 Death is my son-in-law, death is my heir,
 My daughter he hath wedded! I will die,
 And leave him all; life leaving, all is death's.

HAMLET.

To be, or not to be: that is the question: Whether 'tis nobler in the mind to suffer The slings and arrows of outrageous fortune, Or to take arms against a sea of troubles, And by opposing end them? To die: to sleep; No more; and by a sleep to say we end The heart-ache and the thousand natural shocks That flesh is heir to, 'tis a consummation Devoutly to be wish'd. To die, to sleep: To sleep: perchance to dream: ay, there's the rub: For in that sleep of death what dreams may come, When we have shuffled off this mortal coil. Must give us pause: there's the respect That makes calamity of so long life: For who would bear the whips and scorns of time, The oppressor's wrong, the proud man's contumely, The pangs of dispriz'd love, the law's delay,

The insolence of office, and the spurns That patient merit of the unworthy takes, When he himself might his quietus make With a bare bodkin? who would fardels bear, To grunt and sweat under a weary life, But that the dread of something after death, The undiscover'd country from whose bourn No traveller returns, puzzles the will, And makes us rather bear those ills we have Than fly to others that we know not of? Thus conscience does make cowards of us all: And thus the native hue of resolution Is sicklied o'er with the pale cast of thought, And enterprizes of great pith and moment With this regard their currents turn awry, And lose the name of action.

HENDECASYLLABICS.

O you chorus of indolent reviewers. Irresponsible indolent reviewers— Look, I come to the test, a tiny poem, All composed in a metre of Catullus; All in quantity, careful of my motion, Like the skater on ice that hardly bears him, Lest I fall unawares before the people, Waking laughter in indolent reviewers. Should I flounder awhile, without a tumble, Through this metrification of Catullus, They should speak to me not without a welcome, All that chorus of indolent reviewers. Hard, hard, hard is it, only not to tumble, So fantastical is the dainty metre. Wherefore slight me not wholly, nor believe me Too presumptuous, indolent reviewers. O blatant magazines, regard me rather— Since I blush to belaud myself a moment— As some rare little rose, a piece of inmost Horticultural art, or half-coquette like Maiden, not to be greeted unbenignly.

AUBURN.

WHERE, then, ah! where shall poverty reside, To 'scape the pressure of contiguous pride? If to some common's fenceless limits stray'd, He drives his flock to pick the scanty blade, Those fenceless fields the sons of wealth divide. And ev'n the bare-worn common is denied. If to the city sped—What waits him there? To see profusion that he must not share; To see ten thousand baneful arts combined To pamper luxury, and thin mankind; To see each joy the sons of pleasure know Extorted from his fellow-creature's woe. Here while the courtier glitters in brocade, There the pale artist plies the sickly trade; Here while the proud their long-drawn pomps display,

There the black gibbet glooms beside the way;

QVANTVM DIMISSA PETITIS PRAESTANT!

ergo ubi considet pauper cui proximus urgens eripiat dives tecta brevenque larem? si pecus in nullo descriptos limite campos egerit, ut sterilis gramina carpat agri, arrogat at dives vel publica iugera campi, pauperibusque situ vel loca senta negat. quaesierit Romam—quid quaerere proderit immo? quippe sitit vetitas, Tantalus alter, opes: in genus humanum coniuravisse nefandas mille artes, luxus mille alimenta, videt; quot sibi Patricii delectamenta pararint plebeiis cernit suppeditata malis. scilicet ut Tyrio princeps splendescat in ostro hic grave pallescens textor adurget opus; ducitur hic fulgens Capitolia ad alta triumphus, illic crux maestis imminet atra viis;

The dome where Pleasure holds her midnight reign, Here, richly deckt, admits the gorgeous train: Tumultuous grandeur crowds the blazing square, The rattling chariots clash, the torches glare. Sure, scenes like these no troubles e'er annoy! Sure, these denote one universal joy! Are these thy serious thoughts?—Ah! turn thine eyes

Where the poor houseless shiv'ring female lies.

She once, perhaps, in village plenty blest,

Has wept at tales of innocence distrest:

Her modest looks the cottage might adorn,

Sweet as the primrose peeps beneath the thorn.

Now lost to all; her friends, her virtue fled,

Near her betrayer's door she lays her head;

And, pinch'd with cold, and shrinking from the show'r,

With heavy heart deplores that luckless hour, When idly first, ambitious of the town, She left her wheel and robes of country brown.

GOLDSMITH.

T. J. B. BRADY.

BILLY TAYLOR.

BILLY TAYLOR was a brisk young fellow,
Full of mirth and full of glee,
And his mind he did discover
To a maiden fair and free.

Four-and-twenty brisk young fellows, Clad in jackets' blue array, And they took poor Billy Taylor From his true love out to sea.

His true love she follow'd after,
Under the name of Richard Carr,
And her hands they were bedaubed
With the nasty pitch and tar.

An engagement came on the very next morning,
Bold she fought among the rest;
The wind aside did blow her jacket,
And discover'd her lily-white breast.

acer erat nulli non Mopsus idoneus arti, festivum pleno cum salis ore caput; ille adiens facilem, qua non formosior ibat, Phyllida, quo penitus ferveat igne, refert. viginti iuvenes et bis duo, mascula pubes (tincta nitescebat murice cuique chlamys), corripiunt puerum, raptusque requirere amores cogitur amissos, et freta longa sequi. inde habitu sumpto Phyllis tituloque virili abreptum pelagi per mala dura petit, femineoque videt fastu retinacula tractans saepe picem teneras commaculare manus. proxima lux ridet: committitur aequore toto pugna: furit mixtis acrior illa viris: flamina crebrescunt: tunica fluitante retecta femineum prodit nuda papilla sinum.

Now, when the captain he came for to hear of it, Says he, 'What wind has blown you to me?' 'Kind sir, I be come for to seek my true love, Whom you press'd and sent to sea.'

'If you be come for to seek your true love,

He from his ship is gone away;

And you'll find him in London streets, ma'am,

Walking with his lady gay.'

So she rose up early in the morning, Long before the break of day, And she found false Billy Taylor Walking with his lady gay.

Straight she call'd for swords and pistols,
Which were brought at her command;
And she kill'd poor Billy Taylor,
With his lady in his hand.

When the captain he came for to hear of it,

He very much applauded her for what she had done,

And he made her first lieutenant Of the gallant 'Thunder Bomb.'

THALABA.

OR, when the winter torrent rolls

Down the deep-channelled raincourse foamingly,

Dark-with its mountain spoils,

With bare feet pressing the wet sand,

There wanders Thalaba:

The rushing flow, the flowing roar

Filling his yielded faculties,

A vague, a dizzy, a tumultuous joy.

Or lingers it a vernal brook,

Gleaming o'er the yellow sands?

Beneath the lofty bank reclined

With idle eyes he views its little waves,

Quietly listening to the quiet flow;

While in the breathings of the stirring gale

The tall canes bend above,

Floating, like streamers on the wind,

Their lank uplifted leaves.

THE POET'S DEATH.

CALL it not vain:—they do not err

Who say that, when the poet dies,

Mute Nature mourns her worshipper,

And celebrates his obsequies:

Who say, tall cliff and cavern lone

For the departed Bard make moan;

That mountains weep in crystal rill;

That flowers in tears of balm distil;

Through his loved groves that breezes sigh,

And oaks in deeper groan reply;

And rivers teach their rushing wave

To murmur dirges round his grave.

MORS POETAE.

non fabulas, non somnia inania fingunt, poëtam mors ubi ademerit, plorare Naturam, suique exsequias celebrare mutam cultoris. illum namque sub invidas raptum tenebras aëriae gemunt rupes et antrorum recessus: flumine flet vitreo soluta montana moles: de lacrimantibus stillant odores ambrosii rosis; perflantque per lucos amatos sollicitas Zephyri querellas: nec tristiores non referunt sonos querceta; nec non, qui tumulum lavat, quae murmura effundant, ruentes ipse suas docet amnis undas.

Not that, in sooth, o'er mortal urn

Those things inanimate can mourn;

But that the stream, the wood, the gale
Is vocal with the plaintive wail

Of those who, else forgotten long,

Lived in the Poet's faithful song.

SCOTT.

MEMORY.

Thus the ideas, as well as children, of our youth often die before us; and our minds represent to us those tombs to which we are approaching: where, though the brass and marble remain, yet the inscriptions are effaced by time, and the imagery moulders away.

LOCKE.

at non—quis haec tam finxerit inscius?— possunt ad urnam plangere talia tam bruta feralem; sed aurae et nemora et fluvii loquellas dant luctuosas, cum sibi naenias illi cient, qui, ne sopor improbus urgeret ignotos, fidelis carminibus viguere vatis.

HASTINGS CROSSLEY.

ANNIE'S TRYSTE.

Your cheek is wan and white:
What gars ye tremble sae, Annie?
What mak's your e'e sae bright?

The snaw is on the ground, Willie,
The frost is cauld and keen,
But there's a burning fire, Willie,
That sears my heart within.

The Spring will come again, Annie,
And chase the winter's showers,
And you and I shall stray, Annie,
Amang the Summer flowers.

O bonnie are the braes, Willie,
When a' the drifts are gane;
But my heart misgi'es me sair, Willie,
Ye'll wander there alane.

SI QVA FATA ASPERA RVMPAS!

pallent, Delia, cur genae?

friget cur nivibus frigidior manus?

cur artus teneri tremunt?

ardent insolita cur oculi face?

durantur positae nives hiberni gelidis flatibus aetheris;
at pectus, Corydon, meum,
heu! caecis penitus carpitur ignibus.

brumam nubibus horridam grata ver roseum mox vice proteret:
tum per rura vagabimur
aestas flore novo quae decoraverit.

quom diffugerit alta nix, ridebunt nitidis prata coloribus; at tristissima praescius erres ne sine me corda subit timor. O will ye tryste wi' me, Annie?
O will ye tryste me then?
I'll meet you by the burn, Annie,
That wimples doon the glen.

I daur na tryste wi' you, Willie,
I maun na tryste ye here,
But we'll hold our tryste in Heaven, Willie,
In the spring time of the year.

SWEET WESTERN WIND.

Sweet Western Wind, whose luck it is,

Made rival with the air,

To give Perenna's lips a kiss,

And fan her wanton hair;

Bring me but one, I'll promise thee

Instead of common showers,

Thy wings shall be embalmed by me,

And all beset with flowers.

HERRICK.

TO DELIA.

FAIR the face of orient day,
Fair the tints of opening rose;
But fairer still my Delia dawns,
More lovely far her beauty shews.

Sweet the lark's wild warbled lay, Sweet the tinkling rill to hear; But, Delia, more delightful still Steal thine accents on mine ear.

The flower-enamour'd busy bee
The rosy banquet loves to sip:
Sweet the streamlet's limpid lapse
To the sun-brown'd Arab's lip:

But, Delia, on thy balmy lips

Let me, no vagrant insect, rove:

Oh! let me steal one liquid kiss,

For, oh! my soul is parch'd with love.

BURNS.

non apis ritu temere avolantis in tuis labris mihi sit vagari; hinc sinas haustum rapiam, levemque pectoris ignės.

THE BAIT.

Come live with me, and be my love, And we will some new pleasures prove Of golden sands and crystal brooks, With silken lines and silver hooks.

There will the river whispering run, Warm'd by thine eyes more than the sun; And there the enamell'd fish will stay, Begging themselves they may betray.

When thou wilt swim in that live bath, Each fish which every channel hath Will amorously to thee swim, Gladder to catch thee than thou him.

Let others freeze with angling-reeds, And cut their legs with shells and weeds; Or treacherously poor fish beset With strangling snare or windowy net;

DVM CAPIMVS CAPIMVR.

Let coarse bold hands from slimy nest The bedded fish in banks outwrest; Let curious traitors' sleave-silk flies Bewitch poor fishes' wandering eyes.

For thee, thou need'st no such deceit, For thou thyself art thine own bait; The fish that is not catch'd thereby Alas! is wiser far than I.

DONNE.

PEACE, PEACE!

YE have not sowed in vain!

Though the heavens seem as brass,

And piercing the crust of the burning plain

Ye scan not a blade of grass;

Yet there is life within,

And waters of life on high;

One morn ye shall wake, and the spring's soft green

O'er the moisten'd fields shall lie.

Prince. These lies are like their father that begets them; gross as a mountain, open, palpable. Why, thou clay-brained guts, thou knotty-pated fool, thou obscene, greasy tallow-catch—

Fal. What! art thou mad? art thou mad? is not the truth the truth?

Prince. Why, how could'st thou know these men in Kendal-green, when it was so dark thou could'st not see thy hand? Come, tell us your reason: what sayest thou to this?

THE NURSERY OF NATIONS.

MEANTIME o'er rocky Thrace and the deep vales
Of gelid Haemus I pursued my flight;
And, piercing farthest Scythia, westward swept Sarmatia traversed by a thousand streams.
A sullen land of lakes and fens immense,
Of rocks, resounding torrents, gloomy heaths,
And cruel deserts black with sounding pine;
Where Nature frowns; though sometimes into smiles
She softens, and immediate, at the touch
Of southern gales, throws from the sudden glebe
Luxuriant pasture and a waste of flowers.
But, cold-compress'd, when the whole loaded heaven
Descends in snow, lost in one white abrupt
Lies undistinguish'd earth; and, seized by frost,
Lakes, headlong streams, and floods, and oceans sleep.

LALLA ROOKH.

How calm, how beautiful comes on The stilly hour, when storms are gone; When warring winds have died away, And clouds beneath the glancing ray Melt off, and leave the land and sea Sleeping in bright tranquillity, Fresh, as if day again were born, Again upon the lap of morn! When the light blossoms, rudely torn And scattered at the whirlwind's will. Hang floating in the pure air still, Filling it all with precious balm, In gratitude for this sweet calm; And every drop the thunder showers Have left_upon the grass and flowers Sparkles, as 'twere that lightning gem, Whose liquid flame is born of them.

FATHER WILLIAM.

(From Alice in Wonderland.)

- 'You are old, Father William,' the young man said,
 'And your hair has become very white;
 And yet you incessantly stand on your head—
 - And yet you incessantly stand on your head—

 Do you think at your age it is right?'
- 'In my youth,' Father William replied to his son,
 'I fear'd it might injure the brain;
 But now I am perfectly sure I have none—
 Why I do it again and again.'
- 'You are old,' said the youth, 'as I mention'd before,
 And have grown most uncommonly fat;
 Yet you turn'd a back-somersault in at the door—
 Pray, what is the reason of that?'
- 'In my youth,' said the sage, as he shook his grey locks.
 - 'I kept all my limbs very supple

 By the use of this ointment—one shilling the box—

 Allow me to sell you a couple?'

CALLIDVS ALIPTES.

'te, genitor, senuisse vides' (ita filius olim);

'albent matura tempora canitie:

vertice demisso pedibus sublimia captas?

corporibus tardis haec, mihi crede, nefas.'

'abstinui iuvenis,' pater inquit, 'talibus ausis, ne qua foret cerebro noxia facta meo:

at genio quis me nunc indulgere vetabit

expertum capiti nuper inesse nihil?'

'te senuisse vides, si fas iterare querellam;

crescunt crura tibi pinguia, pingue latus;

te tamen inversos dantem trans limina saltus

miror: quae tanti causa furoris erat?'

Nestoreos agitans crines, 'mihi contigit,' inquit,

'membrorum summa mobilitate frui:

hoc ceroma vides; cessas emere? unguere; nummo

(sume duos) uno venditur unus onyx.'

'You are old,' said the youth, 'and your jaws are too weak

For anything tougher than suet;

Yet you finish'd the goose, with the bones and the beak—

Pray, how did you manage to do it?'

- 'In my youth,' said his father, 'I took to the law, And argued each case with my wife;
 - And the muscular strength which it gave to my jaw Has lasted the rest of my life.'
- 'You are old,' said the youth; 'one would hardly suppose

That your eye was as steady as ever;

- Yet you balanced an eel on the end of your nose— What made you so awfully clever?'
- 'I have answer'd three questions, and that is enough,'
 Said his father; 'don't give yourselves airs!
 - Do you think I can listen all day to such stuff? Be off, or I'll kick you down stairs!'

LEWIS CARROLL.

 ille sub haec: 'olim causas ego publicus egi, ac reduci parvum fit domus ipsa forum;
 qui mihi maxillas his viribus induit usus,
 ut senio haud fractus manserit ille vigor.'
- 'at, pater, annoso nemo iam sanus ocello virtutem priscam credat inesse tuo;
 anguillam tamen hanc—opus admirabile—naso, dic mihi, librasti qua ratione, pater?'
- 'plura nefas! tria iam dedimus responsa petenti; hinc,' genitor, 'fastus, hinc, puer, aufer,' ait:
- 'tene diem totum nugas trivisse canentem!

 i—pedibus nostris eiiciendus abi!'

A LOVER'S MISGIVINGS.

THYRSIS, when we parted, swore

Ere the spring he would return—

Ah! what means yon violet flower,

And the bud that decks the thorn?

'Twas the lark that upward sprung!

'Twas the nightingale that sung!

Idle notes! untimely green!

Why this unavailing haste?

Zephyr winds and skies serene

Speak not always winter past.

Cease, my doubts, my fears to move—

Spare the honour of my love.

 fallor, an alta petens spernit alauda solum?
immature color! non tempestiva querella!
 sicine iam vernus praeripiendus honor?
detonuit num bruma, semel si Iuppiter albus, cogitur et Zephyro ponere flante minas?
ah! nolite metus, nolite movere timores—vivat amatoris non temerata fides.

RALPH S. BENSON.

SALLY IN OUR ALLEY.

Or all the girls that are so smart,

There's none like pretty Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,

And she lives in our alley.

There is no lady in the land

Is half so sweet as Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,

And she lives in our alley.

Her father he makes cabbage-nets,
And through the streets does cry 'em;
Her mother she sells laces long
To such as please to buy 'em:
But sure such folks could ne'er beget
So sweet a girl as Sally!
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

TOTA MERVM SAL.

nulla inter nitidas, puto, puellas conferri lepidae potest Megillae: meae deliciae est, mei lepores, iuxta nos habitans in angiportu. ecquae nobilis et superba virgo tam mellitula quam Megilla vivit? illam depereo intimis medullis iuxta nos habitantem in angiportu. pauper cauliculis meae puellae pater reticula et facit tuendis, et venalia clamitat per urbem: at matercula venditat puellae limbos, quisquis emet, laboriosos. sed credas cave plebe de scelesta tales delicias fuisse natas: illam plus oculis amo gemellis iuxta nos habitantem in angiportu. When she is by I leave my work,
I love her so sincerely;
My master comes like any Turk,
And bangs me most severely;
But let him bang his bellyful,
I'll bear it all for Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

Of all the days that's in the week,

I dearly love but one day,

And that's the day that comes betwixt

A Saturday and Monday;

For then I'm drest all in my best

To walk abroad with Sally;

She is the darling of my heart,

And she lives in our alley.

My master carries me to church,
And often am I blamed
Because I leave him in the lurch
As soon as text is named;
I leave the church in sermon-time
And slink away to Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

ad nos cum mea ventitat puella, confestim, quod erat mihi negoti, qui tam perdite amem, lubens omitto: existit similis truci Britanno iracundus erus, meisque malis infringit colaphos severiores: sed per me colaphis iecur saginet; plagas nil moror ob meam puellam: meae deliciae est, mei lepores, iuxta nos habitans in angiportu. non huius facio dies profestosfesti plus oculis meis amantur! tum demum licet ire feriatum. et cultum pretiosiore veste cum cara spatiarier puella: illam depereo impotente amore iuxta nos habitantem in angiportu. adsisto, domino trahente, sacris, et male audio identidem, quod inde, orarit bona verba cum sacerdos, erum inter medias preces hiantem linquens, aufugio ad meam puellam: quae desiderium meum est, meum mel, iuxta nos habitans in angiportu.

When Christmas comes about again,
O then I shall have money;
I'll hoard it up, and box it all,
And give it to my honey:
I would it were ten thousand pound,
I'd give it all to Sally;
She is the darling of my heart,
And she lives in our alley.

My master and the neighbours all
Make game of me and Sally,
And, but for her, I'd better be
A slave, and row a galley;
But, when my seven long years are out,
O then I'll marry Sally—
O then we'll wed, and then we'll bed,
But not in our alley!

H. CAREY.

Saturnalia laeta cum redibunt. prae manu quid erit mihi lucelli, quantum quantum erit, arcula repostum, dabo melliculo meo nitenti: di faxint deciens sit! usque ad assem effundam in gremium meae puellae: nam desiderium meum est, meum mel, iuxta nos habitans in angiportu. at vicinia tota erusque mordax ludos me facit, et meos amores: et credo, nisi quod levat puella, vitam vivere liberaliorem servos lautumiis datos in aevum: sed post tempora tarda servitutis a praetore meusque pileatusque egressus dominam volens volentem ducam, Hymen Hymenaee!—at in malam rem nostrum abire sinemus angiportum!

THE GIFT.

SAY, cruel Iris, pretty rake,
Dear mercenary beauty,
What annual offering shall I make
Expressive of my duty?

My heart, a victim to thine eyes,
Should I at once deliver,
Say, would the angry fair one prize
The gift, who slights the giver?

A bill, a jewel, watch, or toy,
My rivals give, and let 'em;
If gems or gold impart a joy,
I'll give them—when I get 'em.

I'll give, but not the full-blown rose, Or rosebud, more in fashion; Such short-lived offerings but disclose A transitory passion.

I'll give thee something yet unpaid,
Not less sincere than civil;
I'll give thee, ah! too charming maid,
I'll give thee—to the d——.

THE SILENT LOVER.

Few the words that I have spoken—
True love's words are ever few;
But by many a speechless token
Hath my heart discoursed to you.

Souls that to each other listen,

Hear the language of a sigh;

Read the silent tears that glisten

In the tender trembling eye.

When your cheek is pale with sadness,
Dimmer grows the light of mine;
And your smiles of sunny gladness
In my face reflected shine.

Though my speech is faint and broken,
Though my words are ever few;
Yet by many a voiceless token
All my heart is known to you.

MVTVS AMOR.

pauca quidem dixi, cultor taciturnus amabam, fidus amans semper multa tacere solet; attamen indiciis mea corda silentibus usa saepe tibi sensus exhibuere suos. concordes animae quid egent interprete lingua? colloquii gemitus scilicet instar habent; literulis illae quid egent? i, perlege guttam luminibus teneris quae tremebunda nitet. cum tibi sollicitae pallet flos iste genarum, tum mea contristat mutuus ora dolor: et tibi laetanti vultus cum risus inaurat, ora repercussa tum mea luce nitent. quid quod lingua labat mediaque in voce resistit, atque amor eloquium praepedit ipse suum? quod lateat tacito non enarrabile corde pluribus indiciis tu, mea vita, tenes.

MARY.

- 'Oн! it's time I should speak to your father, Dear Mary,' says I.
- 'Oh! don't speak to my father,' says Mary, Beginning to cry;
- 'For my father he loves me so dearly,

 He ne'er will consent I should go;
 - If you speak to my father,' says Mary,
 - 'He'll surely say no!'
- 'Then I think I must speak to your mother, Dear Mary,' says I.
- 'Oh! don't speak to my mother,' says Mary, Just wiping her eye;
- 'For mother says men are deceitful;

 She never will give her consent,

 And that girls in a hurry to marry

 At leisure repent.'

ΤΕΤΛΑΘΙ ΜΟΙ, ΚΡΑΔΙΗ.

- 'iam manet orandus genitor tuus,' inquit Alexis,
 'o magis his oculis cara Corinna mihi.'
- 'heu! minime' clamat 'pater est adeundus amanti,' irrigat ut teneras lacrima fusa genas,
- 'ah! nescis, nescis, quali foveatur amore filia, non questus audiet ille tuos;
 - orabis frustra talem, carissime, patrem, invida ferventes auferet aura preces.'
- 'at genetrix oranda tamen; nam mollior aegri femina non nihili pendere vota solet.'
- 'hanc quoque tu' clamat, lacrimam dum siccat obortam,
 - 'hanc caveas, nihili mollia verba facit;
 haec tibi num credet, nullam quae semper amanti quamvis iurato dictitat esse fidem?
 praeripiatque faces citius si vana iugales, mutatos sero flere dolore deos.'

- 'Then how shall I get you, my jewel, Dear Mary?' says I;
- 'If your parents will both be so cruel,
 I surely must die.'
- 'Oh never say die, love,' says Mary,
 'The way to relieve you I see:
 Since my parents are both so contrary,
 You'd better—ask me!'

SEA-SHORE STANZA.

METHINKS I fain would lie by the lone sea,

And hear the waters their white music weave!

Methinks it were a pleasant thing to grieve,

So that our sorrows might companion'd be

By that strange harmony

Of winds and billows, and the living sound

Sent down from heaven when the thunder speaks

Unto the listening shores and torrent creeks,

When the swollen sea doth strive to burst its bound!

'dic igitur tandem, vita mihi carior ipsa, dic misero, quonam sis potiunda modo.
non exorandi si te genuere parentes, quid me ni fatis occubuisse manet?'
illa 'omen procul hoc absit, carissime; restat non tibi nil tantis quo medeare malis;
si mens heu durat non exoranda parentum, quin natam, frustra non abiturus, adis?'

SOLACIA VICTIS.

(THE FIREWORSHIPPERS.)

What! while our arms can wield these blades. Shall we die tamely? die alone Without one victim to our shades. One Moslem heart, where, buried deep, The sabre from its toil may sleep? No. God of Iran's burning skies, Thou scorn'st th' inglorious sacrifice. No, though of all earth's hopes bereft, Life, swords, and vengeance still are left. We'll make you valley's reeking caves Live in the awe-struck minds of men Till tyrants shudder, when their slaves Tell of the Gheber's bloody glen. Follow, brave hearts! This pile remains, Our refuge still from life and chains; But his the best, the holiest bed. Who sinks entomb'd in Moslem dead.

STANZAS ON WOMAN.

When lovely woman stoops to folly,

And finds too late that men betray,

What charm can soothe her melancholy,

What art can wash her guilt away?

The only art her guilt to cover,

To hide her shame from every eye,

To give repentance to her lover,

And wring his bosom, is—to die.

ALFRED P. GRAVES.

THE PLAGUE OF A SERVING-MAN.

A PLAGUE of my master to send me out this dreadful dark night to bring the news of his victory to my lady: and was I not bewitched for going on his errand without a convoy for the safeguard of my person? How am I melted into sweat with fear? I am diminished of my natural weight above two I shall not bring half myself home again to my poor wife and family. I have been in ague fit ever since shut of evening, what with the fright of trees by the highway, which looked maliciously like thieves by moonshine, and with bulrushes by the river-side that shaked like spears and lances at Well, the greatest plague of a servingman is to be hired to some great lord! They care not what drudgery they put upon us, while they lie lolling at their ease a-bed, and stretch their lazy limbs.

ROBERT Y. TYRRELL.

DRINKING SONG.

Come, old friend! sit down and listen!
From the pitcher placed between us,
How the waters laugh and glisten
In the head of old Silenus!

Old Silenus, bloated, drunken, Led by his inebriate Satyrs; On his breast his head is sunken; Vacantly he leers and chatters.

Fauns with youthful Bacchus follow;
Ivy crowns that brow supernal
As the forehead of Apollo,
And possessing youth eternal.

Round about him fair Bacchantes,
Bearing cymbals, flutes, and thyrses,
Wild from Naxian groves, or Zante's
Vineyards, sing delirious verses.

IHZI ZEITON NEIAOZ ETITOTON PEOZ.

hospes, sodalem me veterem, vetus, sic stratus audi. quam micat in cado caelata Sileni per ora Bandusiae liquor et renidet!

pinguem et madentem Capripedes ferunt (ipsi madentes non levius) senem; qui, vertice in pectus relapso, vana crepat vacuumque ridet.

Fauni sequuntur, non sine Libero; excelsa cui frons, qualis Apollinis, vittata lascivis corymbis, perpetua fruitur iuventa.

circa venustae Bistonides choro, thyrsos ferentes, tympana, tibias, bacchantur; effusae Zacynthi saltibus, uviferaeque Diae. Thus he won, through all the nations, Bloodless victories, and the farmer
Bore, as trophies and oblations,
Vines for banners, ploughs for armour.

Judged by no o'er-zealous rigour,

Much this mystic throng expresses:

Bacchus was the type of vigour,

And Silenus of excesses.

These are ancient ethnic revels,

Of a faith long since forsaken:

Now the Satyrs changed to devils

Frighten mortals wine-o'ertaken.

Now to rivulets from the mountains

Point the rods of fortune-tellers;

Youth perpetual dwells in fountains—

Not in flasks, and casks, and cellars.

Claudius, though he sang of flagons,
And huge tankards fill'd with Rhenish,
From that fiery blood of dragons
Never would his own replenish.

sic orbe toto sanguinis inscios egit triumphos; cultor ubi ferox nec signa traduxit nec arma, vomere palmitibusque onustus.

haec non iniquus si reputaveris, multum docebit te thiasus sacer; monstrante Sileno nocentem luxuriam, Bromioque vires.

mutata cultum saecula pristinum, et tot furores destituunt diu: Faunosque iam vino petiti et Furias pariter pavescunt.

potanda monstrat iam radio magus delapsa rivi flumina montibus. Hebe colit fontes, perosa horreaque et cyathos cadosque.

grandes lagenas Claudius ut canat, quas vitis explet Rhaetica, ne suos cavit coronaret culullos ille cruor calidus draconum. Even Redi, though he chaunted Bacchus in the Tuscan valleys,
Never drank the wine he vaunted
In his dithyrambic sallies.

Then with water fill the pitcher,
Wreath'd about with classic fables;
Ne'er Falernian threw a richer
Light upon Lucullus' tables.

Come, old friend! sit down and listen!
As it passes thus between us,
How its wavelets laugh and glisten
In the head of old Silenus!

purpureo melius Falerno.

audi, sodalis, sic temere accubans:
dum nos revisit sic scyphus in vices, caelata Sileni per ora fluctuat ut liquor et renidet!

COME NOT WHEN I AM DEAD.

Come not, when I am dead,

To drop thy foolish tears upon my grave,

To trample round my fallen head,

And vex the unhappy dust thou would'st not save.

There let the wind sweep, and the plover cry;

But thou, go by.

Child, if it were thine error or thy crime
I care no longer, being all unblest;
Wed whom thou wilt, but I am sick of time,
And I desire to rest.
Pass on, weak heart, and leave me where I lie:
Go by, go by.

REQUIESCAT.

Strew on her roses, roses,

But never a spray of yew;
In silence she reposes:

Ah, would that I did too!

Her mirth the world required,

She bathed them in smiles and glee;
But her heart was tired, tired,

And now they let her be.

Her life was turning, turning,
In mazes of light and sound;
But for peace her soul was yearning,
And now peace laps her round.

Her cabin'd ample spirit
Flutter'd and fail'd for breath;
To-night it doth inherit
The vasty hall of death.

ISLE OF PALMS.

OH many are the beauteous isles Unknown to human eye, That, sleeping 'mid the ocean's smiles, In happy silence lie. The ship may pass them in the night, Nor the sailors know what a lovely sight Is resting on the main; Some wandering ship who hath lost her way, And never, or by night or day, Shall pass these isles again. There, groves that bloom in endless spring Are rustling to the radiant wing Of birds, in various plumage bright, As rainbow hues, or dawning light. Soft falling showers of blossom fair Float ever on the fragrant air, Like showers of vernal snow; And from the fruit-tree, spreading tall, The richly-ripen'd clusters fall Oft as sea-breezes blow.

OH, FORTVNATOS NIMIVM SVA SI BONA NORINT!

amaena, credo, plurima est sita insula, ignota quae mortalibus cubat beato dormiens silentio. ridentia inter aequora. praetervehetur nocte forsitan ratis, nec navitae in mentem venit spectanda rerum forma, quam tenet mare: cursu vagata devio, non rursus illa nocte, non die, ratis praetervehetur insulam. florens perenni vere ibi nemus strepit pennis coruscis alitum, quibus renidet pluma tot coloribus, quot arcus aut Eoa lux. molli cadentes imbre floreae comae (sic vere descendunt nives) auris odoris usque candidae natant: late minantis arboris matura poma, flabra cum spirant maris, cadunt racemis aureis.

The sun and clouds alone possess

The joy of all that loveliness;

And sweetly to each other smile

The live-long day—sun, cloud, and isle.

How silent lies each shelter'd bay!

No other visitors have they

To their shores of silvery sand,

Than the waves that, murmuring in their glee,

All hurrying in a joyful band,

Come dancing from the sea.

A WIDOW BIRD.

A widow bird sat mourning for her love
Upon a wintry bough;
The freezing wind kept on above—
The freezing stream below.

There was no leaf upon the trees,

No flower upon the ground;

And little motion in the air,

Save of the mill-wheel's sound.

Push off the boat,

Quit, quit the shore,

The stars will guide us back:-

O gathering cloud,

O labyrinth,

O sunless gloom,

The other side of Death!

THE DAISY.

THEE Winter in the garland wears
That thinly decks his few grey hairs;
Spring parts the clouds with softest airs,
That she may sun thee:
Whole summer fields are thine by right;
And Autumn, melancholy wight!
Doth in thy crimson head delight,
When rains are on thee.

Be violets in their secret mews

The flowers the wanton zephyrs choose;

Proud be the rose, with rains and dews

Her head impearling;

Thou liv'st with less ambitious aim,

Yet hast not gone without thy fame:

Thou art, indeed, by many a claim,

The poet's darling.

ΤΑΥΤΑ ΚΑΜΟΙ ΣΥΝΔΟΚΕΙ.

STAY now thy hand!

Proclaim not man's dominion

Over God's works by strewing rocks and sand

With sea-bird's blood-stained plumes and broken pinion.

Oh stay thy hand!

Spend not thy days of leisure

In scattering death along the peaceful strand

For very wantonness, or pride, or pleasure.

For birds' sake spare!

Leave it in happy motion,

To wheel its easy circles through the air,

Or rest and rock upon the shining ocean.

For man's sake spare!

Leave him this thing of beauty,

To glance and glide before him everywhere,

And throw a gleam on after days of duty.

TIO, TIO, TIO, TIO, TIOTIFE.

iam siste dextram: iam pudeat viros praestare rerum se dominos, data, per saxa, per litus cruentum, strage avium laceraeque plumae.

oro per ipsas te volucres: iter radant recurvum per spatia aëris qua fert libido; seu nitenti oceano fluitare malint.

nec te per ipsos non homines precor:
rem tam venustam sensibus intimis, dum splendet et gyros decoros
ludit agens, memores reponant.

For God's sake spare!

He notes each sea-bird falling,

And in Creation's groans marks its sad share, Its dying cry for retribution calling.

Oh stay thy hand!

Cease from this useless slaughter;

For though kind nature from the rocks and sand Washes the stains each day with briny water;

Yet on thy hand,

Raised against God's fair creature, Beware lest there be found a crimson brand Indelible by any force of Nature.

MORAL IMPROVEMENT.

INFINITE toil would not enable you to sweep away a mist; but by ascending a little you may often look over it altogether. So it is with our moral improvement. We wrestle fiercely with a vicious habit, which would have no hold upon us if we ascended into a higher moral atmosphere.

A MEDITATION.

OH, the praties they are small,
Over there!
Oh, the praties they are small,
Over there!
Oh, the praties they are small,
And they digs them at the fall,
And they ates them—skins and all—
Over there!

Oh, I wish I were a geese,
All forlorn!
Oh, I wish I were a geese,
All forlorn!
Oh, I wish I were a geese,
I would live and die in peace,
And accumulate much grease,
Eating corn.

ORINDA.

Now all these charms, that beauteous grace, The well-proportion'd shape and beauteous face, Shall never more be seen by mortal eyes; In earth the much-lamented virgin lies. Nor wit nor piety could Fate prevent, Nor was the cruel Destiny content To finish all the murder at a blow. To sweep at once her life and beauty too, But, like a harden'd felon, took a pride To work more mischievously slow, And plunder'd first and then destroy'd: A double sacrilege on things divine-To rob the relic and deface the shrine! But thus Orinda died: Heaven by the same disease did both translate; As equal were their souls, so equal was their fate.

Meanwhile her warlike brother on the seas

His waving streamers to the winds displays;

And vows for his return with vain devotion pays.

Ah, generous youth, that wish forbear!

The winds too soon will waft thee here.

Slack all thy sails, and fear to come.

Alas, thou knowest not thou art wreck'd at home.

A LEARNED WOMAN.

In Beauty or Wit
No mortal as yet
To question your empire has dared;
But men of discerning
Have thought that in learning
To yield to a woman is hard.
Impertinent schools
With dull musty rules
Have reading to females denied;
So Papists refuse
The Bible to use
Lest flocks should be wise as their guide.

GUINEVERE.

HENCEFORWARD, too, the powers that tend the soul, To keep it from the death that cannot die, And save it even in extremes, began To plague and vex her. Many a time, for hours Beside the placid breathings of the king, In the dead night, grim faces came and went Before her; or a vague spiritual fear, Like to some doubtful noise of creaking doors Heard by the watcher in a haunted house, That keeps the rust of murder on the walls, Held her awake; or, if she slept, she dream'd An awful dream; for then she seem'd to stand On some vast plain, before a setting sun, And from the sun there swiftly made at her A ghastly something, and its shadow flew Before it till it touch'd her, and she turned-When lo! her own, that broadening from her feet, And blackening, swallow'd all the land, and in it Far cities burnt—and with a cry she woke.

EUPHELIA AND CLOE.

THE merchant, to secure his treasure,
Conveys it in a borrow'd name:
Euphelia serves to grace my measure,
But Cloe is my real flame.

My softest verse, my darling lyre
Upon Euphelia's toilet lay—
When Cloe noted her desire
That I should sing, that I should play.

My lyre I tune, my voice I raise,
But with my numbers mix my sighs;
And whilst I sing Euphelia's praise,
I fix my soul on Cloe's eyes.

Fair Cloe blush'd: Euphelia frown'd;
I sung and gazed; I play'd and trembled:
And Venus to the Loves around
Remark'd how ill we all dissembled.

fictis, ut sibi sospitet, cautus vector opes sub titulis tegit;
versus Aemiliam mei
laudant, sed penitus depereo Chloën.

ornanti Aemiliae comas praesto forte chelys, deliciae meae, et carmen lepidum iacet;
ut iungam fidibus verba rogat Chloë.

hanc sumptam modulor, cano, sed suspiria cum carmine misceo; vox sane Aemiliam sonat, mens defixa Chloën tota inhiat Chloën.

illa avertitur, haec rubet, canto ipse, et modulor, contueor, tremo;
dixit Cypris Amoribus,
'quam non dissimulant quisque suam facem!'

APOLOGY FOR PLEASURE.

GLAUCOPIS forsakes her own: The angry gods forget us; But yet the blue streams along Walk the feet of the silver song; And the night-bird wakes the moon; And the bees in the blushing noon Haunt the heart of the old Hymettus? We are fallen, but not forlorn, If something is left to cherish; As Love was the earliest born, So Love is the last to perish. Wreathe then the roses, wreathe! The Beautiful still is ours: While the stream shall flow, and the sky shall glow, The Beautiful still is ours! Whatever is fair or soft or bright In the lap of Day or the arms of Night,

SPIRAT ADHVC AMOR.

immemor heu! Pallas cedit ab urbe sua:

at, quae caeruleo praeter pede labitur, unda integrat argenteos iam numerosa choros;

iam Lunam Philomela ciet; iam viscera Hymetti

iam Lunam Philomela ciet; iam viscera Hymetti sole rubescentis nota frequentat apes.

sternamur licet; at non spe sternemur adempta, si quid inextinctum quod foveamus erit:

non nisi primigenus—sic creditur—est Amor ortus, non nisi supremus—crede—peribit Amor.

nectamus roseas, nectat sibi quisque, corollas; sit mihi de Paphiis nexa corolla rosis.

pulcher adhuc nobis nullus non volvitur amnis; pulcher adhuc nobis fulget uterque polus:

quidquid habet clari, quidquid tenerique bonique, seu Nox sive Dies, hic gremio illa sinu,

Whispers our soul of Greece—of Greece—
And hushes our care with a voice of peace.
Wreathe then the roses, wreathe!

They tell me of earlier hours;
And I hear the heart of my country breathe

From the lips of the strangers' flowers.

BULWER LYTTON.

ON A PINE TREE.

(Planted by the Countess of St. Germans in the Phænix Park, 1855.)

Poor tree! a gentle mistress placed thee here,

To be the glory of the glade around;

Thy life has not survived one fleeting year,

And she too sleeps beneath another mound.

But mark what differing terms your fates allow,
Tho' like the period of your swift decay;
Thine are the sapless root and wither'd bough;
Her's the green memory and immortal day.

CARLISLE.

Hellade nos celebrat; pavidos vox Helladis inde nos mulcet placidas vaticinata vices.

nectamus roseas, nectat sibi quisque, corollas; aetatem redolent quae fuit ante rosae: quippe mihi ex istis—audin' tu?—floribus, hospes, afflatur patriae spiritus ipse meae.

SAMUEL ALLEN.

NEFASTO TE POSVIT DIE.

arbor, te miseram posuit manus alma puellae ut nemoris stares gloria magna tui; sed tibi vita brevem non suppeditavit in annum,
mortua sub tumulo dormit et illa suo.
at brevitate pares quamquam mors abstulit ambas, impare sunt sortes condicione datae;
est marcere tuum ramis arentibus, illa
floret in ore virum, floret in Elysio.

TEARS, IDLE TEARS.

TEARS, idle tears, I know not what they mean;
Tears from the depths of some divine despair
Rise in the heart, and gather to the eyes,
In looking on the happy Autumn fields,
And thinking of the days that are no more.

Ah! sad and strange as in dark summer dawns
The earliest pipe of half-awaken'd birds
To dying ears, when unto dying eyes
The casement slowly grows a glimmering square;
So sad, so strange, the days that are no more.

Dear as remember'd kisses after death,

And sweet as those by hopeless fancy feign'd

On lips that are for others; deep as love,

Deep as first love, and wild with all regret,

Oh! Death in Life, the days that are no more.

TENNYSON.

QVIS DESIDERIO SIT PVDOR AVT MODVS.

cur fonte guttae cordis ab intimo surgunt inanes—crediderim deos sic flere-dum contemplor, anni pomiferi sata laeta lustrans, fulsere soles qui mihi pristini? quam mira, tristis quam morientibus extendit angustas trementi luce dies oculis fenestras aestate prima, sol rediens choros cum semisomnos concitat alitum: tam mira, tam tristis latescit corde dies reditura nunquam. non tam negatis dulcia quae labris fingunt amantes oscula; mortuae non illa quae caro puellae ore suae meminere pressa! non ipse amator tam penitus nova aetate primis uritur ignibus! quam vivus elapsos, sepulta spe, crucior meminisse soles!

TOWNSEND MILLS.

A VOTE.

This only grant me, that my means may lie Too low for envy, for contempt too high;

Some honour would I have,

Not from great deeds, but good alone:

Th' unknown are better than th' illknown;

Rumour can ope the grave!

Acquaintance I would have, but when 't depends

Not on the number, but the choice, of friends;

Books should, not business, entertain the light; And sleep, as undisturb'd as death, my night.

My house a cottage more

Than palace, and should fitting be

For all my use, no luxury:

. My gardens painted o'er
With Nature's hand, not Art's, should pleasure yield
Horace might envy in his Sabine field.

HOC ERAT IN VOTIS.

detur minor res invidia, neque fastidienti tenuia sordeat: sed fama ne desit precanti, fama bonis bene parta factis; nam nomen amplum deprecor incliti, mallem latenter vivere quam male audire; rumori sepulcri porta patet stygiaeque fauces! turbam salutantum atria ne vomant. commendet at mi quemque fides sua; nec luce me rixae forenses sollicitent mediusque Ianus libris vacantem; grata quies mihi sit nocte, leto sit similis sopor; et munda contingant, nocentes nescia suppeditare luxus. tecta apta parco, non laris aemula lauti potentum; nec sciat addere ars ulla quaesitos honores sponte sua nitidis agellis

Thus would I double my life's fading space;

For he who runs it well twice runs his race:

And in this true delight,

These unbought sports and happy state,

I would not fear nor wish my fate;

But boldly say each night,

'To-morrow let my sun his beams display,

Or in clouds hide them; I have lived to-day.'

TO A LADY SLEEPING.

Thou sleep'st, soft silken flower! would I were Sleep,
For ever on those lids my watch to keep!
So should I have thee all my own, nor he
Who seals Jove's wakeful eyes my rival be.

ON THE FOREGOING DIVINE POEMS.

When we for age could neither read, nor write,
The subject made us able to indite:
The soul, with nobler resolutions deckt,
The body stooping, does herself erect:
No mortal parts are requisite to raise
Her, who unbody'd, can her Maker praise.

The seas are quiet, when the winds give o'er:
So, calm are we, when passions are no more!
For then we know how vain it was to boast
Of fleeting things, so certain to be lost.
Clouds of affection from our younger eyes
Conceal that emptiness which age descries.

The soul's dark cottage, batter'd and decay'd,
Lets in new light through chinks that time has made.
Stronger by weakness, wiser men become,
As they draw near to their eternal home.
Leaving the old, both worlds at once they view,
That stand upon the threshold of the new.

TO A PENSIVE FRIEND.

Why, why repine, my pensive friend,
At pleasures slipt away?

Some the stern Fates will never lend,
And all refuse to stay.

I see the rainbow in the sky,

The dew upon the grass;
I see them, and I ask not why

They glimmer or they pass.

With folded arms I linger not

To call them back; 'twere vain:
In this or in some other spot,
I know, they'll shine again.

SAMUEL ALLEN.

OSWALD.

THE mountain-ash Deck'd with autumnal berries, that outshine Spring's richest blossoms, yields a splendid show Amid the leafy woods: and ye have seen By a brook-side or solitary tarn How she her station doth adorn; the pool Glows at her feet, and all the gloomy rocks Are brighten'd round her. In his native vale Such and so glorious did this youth appear; A sight that kindled pleasure in all hearts By his ingenuous beauty, by the gleam Of his fair eyes, by his capacious brow, By all the graces with which Nature's hand Had plenteously array'd him. As old bards Tell in their idle song of wandering gods, Pan or Apollo, veil'd in human form, Yet, like the sweet-breath'd violet of the vale.

ARISTAEVS.

Discover'd in their own despite to sense:
So through a simple rustic garb's disguise
In him reveal'd a scholar's genius shone,
And so not wholly hidden from men's sight
In him the spirit of a hero walk'd
Our unpretending valley.

SONG.

When Zephyr waves his balmy wings,

To kiss the sweets of May:

When the soft melodies of spring
Resound from every spray;

With thee, sweet maid, I'll rove along,
And tread the morning dews,

To hear the wood-lark's early song,
Or court the laughing Muse.

AUBURN.

Sweet smiling village, loveliest of the lawn, Thy sports are fled, and all thy charms withdrawn: Amidst thy bowers the tyrant's hand is seen, And desolation saddens all thy green: One only master grasps the whole domain. And half a tillage scants thy smiling plain: No more thy glassy brook reflects the day But choked with sedges works its weedy way: Along thy glades, a solitary guest, The hollow-sounding bittern guards its nest: Amidst thy desert walks the lapwing flies, And tires their echoes with unvarying cries: Sunk are thy bowers in shapeless ruin all, And the long grass o'ertops the mouldering wall; And, trembling, shrinking from the spoiler's hand, Far, far away thy children leave the land. Ill fares the land to threatening ills a prey, Whose wealth accumulates, and men decay: Princes and lords may flourish or may fade, A breath can make them, as a breath has made; But a bold peasantry, their country's pride, When once destroyed can never be supplied.

THE BRAES OF YARROW.

Thy braes were bonny, Yarrow stream,

When first on them I met my lover;

Thy braes, how dreary, Yarrow stream,

When now thy waves his body cover!

For ever now, O Yarrow stream,

Thou art to me a stream of sorrow;

For never on thy banks shall I

Behold my love, the pride of Yarrow.

He promised me a milk-white steed

To bear me to his father's bowers;

He promised me a little page

To squire me to his father's towers;

He promised me a wedding ring,

The wedding day was fixed to-morrow;

Now he is wedded to his grave,

Alas! his watery grave in Yarrow.

ECLOGA HODIERNA.

praedulces inter ripas tunc, Hebre, fluebas, cum iuveni comitem me novus egit amor; sed nimium squalet mihi nunc tua ripa, venustum post tua quam iuvenem condidit unda meum. usque mihi reliquos tu triste meabis in annos, Hebre, nec infaustum deseret omen aquas; nam neque in adspectum ripis venit amplius istis, nec veniet, patriae flos tener ille tuae. 'munus,' ait, 'mittam niveo candore caballum; sic vectam soceri limen adire decet: vernulaque accedet cultu et spectabilis aevo, deducetque mei patris adusque fores. tortile erit pignus certi tibi foederis aurum; iuraque coniugii cras dabit orta dies.' dixit: at exceptum subito sibi nympha maritum vindicat, et liquido nunc tenet, Hebre, toro.

Sweet were his words when last we met;
My passion I as freely told him;
Clasp'd in his arms I little thought
That I should never more behold him.
Scarce was he gone, I saw his ghost;
It vanish'd with a shriek of sorrow;
Thrice did the water-wraith ascend,
And gave a doleful groan through Yarrow.

His mother from the window looked

With all the longing of a mother;

His little sister weeping walked

The greenwood path to meet her brother.

They sought him east, they sought him west,

They sought him all the forest thorough;

They only saw the cloud of night,

They only heard the roar of Yarrow.

No longer from thy window look,

Thou hast no son, thou tender mother;

No longer walk, thou lovely maid,

Alas! thou hast no more a brother;

No longer seek him east or west,

And search no more the forest thorough,

For, wandering in the night so dark,

He fell a lifeless corpse in Yarrow.

summum illud, memini, convenimus: acrius arsit; urere me flammam sum quoque fassa parem; nec minimum, lentis teneor dum laeta lacertis, mens verita est posthac ut foret ille redux. vix abiit: solique apparet amantis imago, continuoque ululans flebilis umbra fugit; deinde instar nebulae fluvii deus ipse resurgens ter maesto per aquas ingemis, Hebre, sono. sollicita e patulis spectat matercula clathris, utque solent matrum corda timere timet: parva nemus, flenti propior, germana petebat, obvius in viridi si foret ille via. tum vero occasum versus, tum solis ad ortum lustrantes saltus avia quaeque petunt; sola tamen visa est caligo noctis, ad aures sola venit fera vox quam, pater Hebre, dabas. non opus est patulis te prospectare fenestris, iam neque enim natum tu, pia mater, habes: neve petas nemoris, virgo formosa, recessus, non etenim posthac frater ut ante redit. iam neque in occasum nec quaerite solis in ortum lustrando saltus avia quaeque, viri; nempe sub incerta dum nocte errabat, in undis decidit, atque animam reddidit, Hebre, tibi.

The tear shall never leave my cheek,

No other youth shall be my marrow;

I'll seek thy body in the stream,

And then with thee I'll sleep in Yarrow!

The tear did never leave her cheek:

No other youth became her marrow;

She found his body in the stream,

And now with him she sleeps in Yarrow.

THE BIRD'S RELEASE.

Go forth, for she is gone!

With the golden light of her wavy hair,

She is gone to the fields of the viewless air:

She hath left her dwelling lone!

Go forth, and like her be free!

With thy radiant wing and thy glancing eye,
Thou hast all the range of the sunny sky:

And what is our grief to thee?

Is it aught even to her we mourn?

Doth she look on the tears by her kindred shed?

Doth she rest with the flowers o'er her gentle head,

Or float on the light wind borne?

We know not—but she is gone!

Her step from the dance, her voice from the song,

And the smile of her eye from the festal throng—

She hath left her dwelling lone!

MAY.

Led by the jocund train of vernal hours,
And vernal air, uprose the gentle May:
Blushing she rose; and blushing rose the flowers
That sprang spontaneous in her genial ray.
Her locks with heaven's ambrosial dews were bright,
And amorous Zephyrs flutter'd on her breast;
With every shifting gleam of morning light
The colours shifted of her rainbow vest.
Imperial ensigns graced her smiling form:
A golden key, and golden wand she bore:
This charms to peace each sullen eastern storm,
And that unlocks the summer's copious store.
Onward in conscious majesty she came,
The grateful honours of mankind to taste;
To gather fairest wreaths of future fame,

And blend fresh triumphs with her glories past.

NE SVTOR SVPRA CREPIDAM.

When some brisk youth, the tenant of a stall,
Employs a pen less pointed than his awl,
Leaves his snug shop, forsakes his store of shoes,
St. Crispin quits, and cobbles for the muse.
Heavens! how the vulgar stare! how crowds applaud!

How ladies read, and literati laud!

If chance some wicked wag should pass his jest,

'Tis sheer ill-nature—don't the world know best?

Genius must guide when wits admire the rhyme,

And Capel Lofft declares 'tis quite sublime.

Hear, then, ye happy sons of needless trade!

Swains, quit the plough, resign the useless spade;

Lo, Burns and Bloomfield, nay, a greater far,

Gifford was born beneath an adverse star,

Forsook the labours of a servile state,

Stemm'd the rude storm, and triumph'd over fate.

CORONACH.

HE is gone on the mountain,
He is lost to the forest,
Like a summer-dried fountain,
When our need was the sorest.
The font re-appearing
From the rain-drops shall borrow,
But to us comes no cheering,
To Duncan no morrow!

The hand of the reaper
Takes the ears that are hoary,
But the voice of the weeper
Wails manhood in glory.
The autumn winds, rushing,
Waft the leaves that are searest,
But our flower was in flushing
When blighting was nearest!

Fleet foot on the correi,
Sage counsel in cumber,
Red hand in the foray,
How sound is thy slumber!
Like the dew on the mountain,
Like the foam on the river,
Like the bubble on the fountain,
Thou art gone, and for ever!

THE ANCIENT MARINER.

The fair breeze blew, the white foam flew,
The furrow follow'd free,
We were the first that ever burst
Into that silent sea.

Down dropt the breeze, the sails dropt down,
'Twas sad as sad could be;
And we did speak only to break
The silence of the sea.

All in a hot and copper sky

The bloody sun at noon

Right up above the mast did stand,

No bigger than the moon.

Day after day, day after day,
We stuck, nor breath nor motion,
As idle as a painted ship
Upon a painted ocean.

And all the boards did shrink;
Water, water, everywhere,

The very deep did rot: O Christ,

That ever this should be!

Yea, slimy things with legs did crawl

Upon the slimy sea.

About, about, in reel and rout,

The death-fires danced at night;

The water, like a witch's oils,

Burnt green, and blue, and white.

COLERIDGE.

'I NVNC, EDERE ME IVBE LIBELLOS.'

A LITERARY lady once asked Dr. Johnson for his candid opinion on a recent work of hers, adding that, if it did not meet his approbation, she had other irons in the fire; whereon the great critic, with grim humour, advised her to put the book where her other irons were.

undique fluctus erat, tabulas squalere videres, undique fluctus erat, fauces sitis arida torret. di nobis meliora! putrescit pontus ab imis sedibus ipse, et foeda modis animalia miris lenta trahunt lentum tabentia crura per aequor. nunc hinc nunc illinc noctu circumsilit ignis intentatque necem; fluctus variante colore aestuat, ut quondam, saga miscente, venena.

AMONG THE FLOWERS.

She took my flowers with simple grace,
And then I breath'd the truth she knew;
No flush, the while, was on her face;
I ceased, and she was silent, too.
At length she speaks, with heaving breast,
Of duty owed to adverse powers;
She hints at feelings long suppress'd,
And hides her face among the flowers.

Blest garland! fleeting years have sped;
Your bliss is past; your bloom is o'er;
Fades, too, this cheek, this bosom dead,
These lips that sue and sigh no more;
Lives, lives relentless Fate alone;
Still Hope is born in leafy bowers,
But when the blushing buds have blown,
Still finds her grave among the flowers.

'vota parum facili debita nostra deo,' et vix fassa premi veteres sub pectore curas,

VANITY OF VANITIES, SAITH THE PREACHER.

Fame, wisdom, love, and power were mine,
And health and youth possess'd me;
My goblets blush'd from every vine,
And lovely forms caress'd me;
I sunn'd my heart in beauty's eyes,
And felt my soul grow tender;
All earth can give or mortal prize,
Was mine of regal splendour.

I strive to number o'er what days
Remembrance can discover,
Which all that life or earth displays
Would lure me to live over.
There rose no day, there roll'd no hour
Of pleasure unembitter'd;
And not a trapping deck'd my power!
That gall'd not while it glitter'd.

POPE'S FIRST PASTORAL.

STREPHON.

ME gentle Delia beckons from the plain, Then, hid in shades, eludes her eager swain; But feigns a laugh, to see me search around, And by that laugh the willing fair is found.

DAPHNIS.

The sprightly Sylvia trips along the green; She runs, but hopes she does not run unseen; While a kind glance at her pursuer flies. How much at variance are her feet and eyes!

STREPHON.

O'er golden sands let rich Pactolus flow,
And trees weep amber on the banks of Po;
Blest Thames's shores the brightest beauties yield.
Feed here, my lambs, I'll seek no distant field.

A TENSON.

STREPHON.

Delia me nutu medio stans provocat horto, abdita mox tenebris avidum deludit amantem; sed risum simulat cum me videt undique frustra quaerere, et est proprio male tristis prodita risu.

DAPHNIS.

et levis exsultim per gramina Silvia ludit: me fugit, at fugiens sese cupit ante videri: iam vultu molli respectat pone sequentem: quantum oculos interque pedes disconvenit illos!

STREPHON.

auratas dives Pactolus lambat harenas, succinaque Eridani ripis fleat Helias arbor: his Tamesis ripae nimium dulcedine praestant. hic mihi pascite, oves, nam sordent cetera rura.

DAPHNIS.

Celestial Venus haunts Idalia's groves:
Diana Cynthus, Ceres Hybla loves:
If Windsor shades delight the matchless maid,
Cynthus and Hybla yield to Windsor shade.

STREPHON.

All nature mourns, the skies relent in showers, Hush'd are the birds, and closed the drooping flowers; If Delia smile, the flowers begin to spring, The skies to brighten, and the birds to sing.

DAPHNIS.

All nature laughs, the groves are fresh and fair, The sun's mild lustre warms the vital air; If Sylvia smile, new glories gild the shore, And vanquish'd nature seems to charm no more.

STREPHON.

In spring the fields, in autumn hills I love, At morn the plains, at noon the shady grove; But Delia always; absent from her sight, Nor plains at morn, nor groves at noon delight.

DAPHNIS.

Sylvia's like autumn ripe, yet mild as May, More bright than noon, yet fresh as early day: E'en spring displeases, when she shines not here, But, bless'd with her, 'tis spring throughout the year.

DAPHNIS.

Idaliae lucos proles colit alma Diones, flava Ceres Hyblam, Cynthum Latonia virgo; haec nostrae placeant formosae prata puellae, his pratis cedent Cynthi iuga, cedet et Hybla.

STREPHON.

omnia iam lugent; iam fletu solvitur aër; conticuere et aves; cessant se pandere flores: Delia si ridet, cito se flos explicat, aër incipit effulgere, et aves renovare canorem.

DAPHNIS.

omnia iam rident; lucus viret et nitet herba; vitales auras modico Sol temperat aestu: Silvia si ridet, decorat venus altera campos; victa iacet, nec iam natura habet ipsa lepores.

STREPHON.

Vere ager, Auctumno ventosa cacumina montis, mane placent campi, mediisque ardoribus antrum: Delia grata aderit semper; sin absit, acerbus et campus mane est, mediisque ardoribus antrum.

DAPHNIS.

Maius habet flores, Auctumnus poma, calores Sol medius, roremque recens lux orta tenellum: Silvia habet pulchri quodcunque est; displicet ipsum Ver si quando abeat; redeat, redit assiduum Ver.

STREPHON

Say, Daphnis, say, in what glad soil appears A wondrous tree that sacred monarchs bears: Tell me but this, and I'll disclaim the prize, And give the conquest to thy Sylvia's eyes.

DAPHNIS.

Nay, tell me first, in what more happy fields The thistle springs, to which the lily yields: And then a nobler prize I will resign, For Sylvia, charming Sylvia, shall be thine.

GOOD RESOLUTIONS.

When the Devil was sick in bed
The Devil a monk would be;
But when the Devil was well again
The devil a monk was he.

STREPHON.

dic quae sit tellus tam laeta ut, Daphni, timendos mira ferat reges ramis felicibus arbor; hoc modo si doceas agnum tibi cedimus ultro, eximiaeque feret primas tua Silvia formae.

DAPHNIS.

immo age dic ubi sit tanto felicius arvum ut tribulos pariat quales non lilia vincant: dic, tibi enim longe pulcherrima praemia cedam: virgineumque decus te Silvia nostra sequetur.

THE SAILOR BOY.

HE rose at dawn, and, fired with hope, Shot o'er the seething harbour bar, And reach'd the ship and caught the rope, And whistled to the morning star. And, while he whistled long and loud, He heard a fierce mermaiden cry, 'O boy, tho' thou art young and proud, I see the place where thou wilt lie. The sands and yeasty surges mix In caves about the dreary bay, And on thy ribs the limpet sticks, And in thy heart the scrawl shall play.' 'Fool,' he answer'd, 'death is sure To those that stay and those that roam; But I will never more endure To sit with empty hands at home.

NIGHT'S HARMONIES.

As the moon's soft splendour

O'er the faint pale starlight of heaven

Is thrown,

So thy voice most tender

To the strings without soul has given

Its own.

The stars will awaken

Though the moon sleep a full hour later

To night;

No leaf will be shaken

While the dews of your melody scatter Delight.

Though the sound overpowers,

Sing again; with your dear voice revealing
A tone

Of some world far from our's,

Where music and moonlight and feeling

Are one!

A SMALL SWEET IDYLL.

Come down, O maid, from yonder mountain height; What pleasure lives in height (the shepherd sang): In height and cold, the splendour of the hills? But cease to move so near the Heavens, and cease To glide a sunbeam by the blasted Pine— To sit a star upon the sparkling spire; And come, for Love is of the valley, come! For Love is of the valley, come thou down And find him: by the happy threshold he, Or hand in hand with Plenty in the maize, Or red with spirted purple of the vats, Or foxlike in the vine; nor cares to walk With Death and Morning on the silver horns: Nor wilt thou snare him in the white ravine. Nor find him dropt upon the firths of ice, That huddling slant in furrow-cloven falls To roll the torrent out of dusky doors:

CANTANDO RIGIDAM DEDVCIT MONTE PVELLAM.

quin ades huc, virgo, quin deseris ardua montis? (incipit upilio); quid enim te summa morantem frigora delectant tantum, candorque iugorum? desine cunctari caelo vicinior, exstas seu delapsa velut pinus iubar inter obustas, vertice seu stellae ritu subnixa corusco. tolle moras; invade viam; si quaeris Amorem, incola vallis Amor; fert laeta ad limina gressum, vel divae iunctus dextrae ditantis aristas it comes, elisove rubescit sanguine prelis, vel sub vite latet ceu vulpes. nulla per albas mortis et Aurorae sequitur vestigia cautes; non tibi in anfractu niveo captandus agenti, aequora non sidit supra glacialia, sulcis concretum trudunt quae per declivia pondus certatim, ut luteis effundant faucibus amnem.

But follow; let the torrent dance thee down
To find him in the valley. Let the wild
Lean-headed Eagles yelp alone, and leave
The monstrous ledges there to slope, and spill
Their thousand wreaths of dangling water-smoke,
That like a broken purpose waste in air:
So waste not thou; but come, for all the vales
Await thee: azure pillars of the earth
Arise to thee: the children call, and I
Thy shepherd pipe, and sweet is every sound;
Sweeter thy voice, but every sound is sweet:
Myriads of rivulets hurrying through the lawn,
The moan of doves in immemorial elms,
And murmuring of innumerable bees.

IN A GARDEN.

Why, Damon, with the forward day
Dost thou thy little spot survey,
From tree to tree with doubtful cheer
Pursue the progress of the year,
What winds arise, what rains descend—
When thou before that year shalt end?

What do thy noon-tide walks avail,
To clear the leaf, and pick the snail,
Then wantonly to death decree
An insect usefuller than thee?
Thou and the worm are brother kind,
As low, as earthy, and as blind.

Vain wretch! canst thou expect to see
The downy peach make court to thee?
Or that thy sense shall ever meet
The bean-flower's deep enbosom'd sweet
Exhaling with an evening blast?
Thy evenings then will all be past.

For shame, my friend, renounce this idle strain!

What would'st thou have a good great man obtain?

Wealth, title, dignity, a golden chain,

Or heaps of corses which his sword had slain?

Goodness and greatness are not means, but ends.

Hath he not always treasures, always friends,

THE GOLDEN YEAR.

The world's great age begins anew,

The golden years return,

The earth doth like a snake renew

Her winter weeds outworn:

Heaven smiles, and faiths and empires gleam

Like wrecks of a dissolving dream.

A brighter Hellas rears its mountains
From waves serener far;
A new Peneus rolls its fountains
Against the morning star.
Where fairer Tempes bloom, there sleep
Young Cyclads on a sunnier deep.

A loftier Argo cleaves the main,
Fraught with a later prize;
Another Orpheus sings again,
And loves, and weeps, and dies.
A new Ulysses leaves once more
Calypso for his native shore.

COMUS. PROLOGUE.

But their way
Lies through the perplex'd paths of this drear wood,
The nodding horror of whose shady brows
Threats the forlorn and wandering passenger;
And here their tender age might suffer peril,
But that by quick command from sovereign Jove,
I was despatch'd for their defence and guard:
And listen why, for I will tell you now,
What never yet was heard in tale or song,
From old or modern bard, in hall or bower.

Bacchus, that first from out the purple grape Crush'd the sweet poison of misused wine,
After the Tuscan mariners transform'd,
Coasting the Tyrrhene shore, as the wind listed,
On Circe's island fell: who knows not Circe,
The daughter of the Sun? whose charmed cup
Whoever tasted lost his upright shape,
And downward fell into a groveling swine.

This nymph, that gazed upon his clustering locks,
With ivy berries wreathed, and his blithe youth,
Had by him, ere he parted thence, a son,
Much like his father, but his mother more,
Whom therefore she brought up, and Comus named:

Who, ripe and frolic of his full-grown age,
Roving the Celtic and Iberian fields,
At last betakes him to this ominous wood,
And, in thick shelter of black shades embowered,
Excels his mother at her mighty art,
Offering to every weary traveller,
His orient liquor in a crystal glass,
To quench the drouth of Phoebus: which as they taste

(For most do taste through fond intemperate thirst)
Soon as the potion works, their human countenance,
The express resemblance of the gods, is changed
Into some brutish form, of wolf, or bear,
Or ounce, or tiger, hog, or bearded goat,
All other parts remaining as they were;
And they, so perfect is their misery,
Not once perceive their foul disfigurement,
But boast themselves more comely than before,
And all their friends and native home forget,

And by what marks may he be known again?'

That hence so long departed, is but in vain;
But yet he prickéd over yonder plain,
And, as I mark'd him, bore upon his shield

A broken sword within a bloody field,
Expressing well his nature who the same did yield.'

No fish astir in our heaving net, The sky is dark and the night is wet, And we must ply the lusty oar, For the tide is ebbing from the shore. And sad are they whose faggots burn, So kindly stored for our return. Our boat is small, and the tempest raves; And nought is heard but the lashing waves, And the sullen roar of the angry sea, And the wild winds piping drearily: Yet sea and tempest rise in vain, We'll bless our blazing hearths again. Push bravely, mates; our guiding star Now from its turret streameth far: And now along the nearing strand See swiftly move you flaming brand: Before the midnight hour is past, We'll quaff our bowl and mock the blast.

Why slumbers Gifford? once was ask'd in vain.

Why slumbers Gifford? let us ask again.

Are there no follies for his pen to purge?

Are there no fools whose backs demand the scourge?

Are there no sins for Satire's bard to greet?

Stalks not gigantic vice in every street?

Shall peers or princes tread pollution's path,

And 'scape alike the law's and Muse's wrath?

Nor blaze with guilty glare through future time,

Eternal beacons of consummate crime?

Arouse thee, Gifford! be thy promise claim'd,

Make bad men better, or at least ashamed!

THE THREE SAILORS.

[Version taken from the Preface to O. W. HOLMES' 'Wit and Humour.']

THERE were three sailors, of Bristol city,
Who took a boat and went to sea;

But first with beef and captain's biscuit

And pickled pork, they loaded she.

There was guzzling Jack and gorging Jimmy,

And the youngest he was little Billee.

Now very soon they were so greedy,

They did not leave not one split pea.

Says guzzling Jack to gorging Jimmy,

'I am confounded hungery.'

Says gorging Jim to guzzling Jacky,

'We have no wittles, so we must eat we.'

Says guzzling Jack to gorging Jimmy,

'O gorging Jim, what a fool you be!

There's little Bill, as is young and tender:

We're old and tough; so lets eat he.'

THE WORLD.

THE world's a bubble, and the life of man Less than a span;

In his conception wretched, from the womb, So to the tomb:

Curst from his cradle, and brought up to years,
With cares and fears:

Who, then, to frail mortality shall trust, But limns on water or but writes in dust.

Yet whilst with sorrow here we live oppress'd, What life is best?

Courts are but only superficial schools

To dandle fools:

The rural part is turn'd into a den
Of savage men;

And where's a city from foul vice so free But may be term'd the worst of all the three? • HEV, HEV, NOS MISEROS, QVAM TOTVS HOMVNCIO NIL EST!

omnia bullatae quam sunt sine pondere nugae! quam nihili angustae properata diecula vitae! materie miser a prima, miser editus alvo, funus obire miser miserum cito pergit homullus. a cunis agit omne infaustus et iratis dis aerumna gravis in mediis terroribus aevum. ergo si quis avet mortalia credulus, unda exprimit effigiem, scribitque in pulvere nomen. dum tamen hic aegri in tanto maerore moramur optima quaenam sit vitae via forte requiras? stultitiae numquid nisi porticus aula tyranni, vecordum nutrix, vera ratione carentum? rura rudes habitant, inculti, pectora bruta; orbe pererrato terrarum ubi viseris urbem vincere quam vitiis non rus fatearis et aulam?

Domestic cares afflict the husband's bed,

Or pains his head:

Those that live single take it for a curse,

Or do things worse:

These would have children; those that have them moan,

Or wish them gone:

What is it, then, to have or have no wife, But single thraldom or a double strife?

Our own affections still at home to please Is a disease;

To cross the seas to any foreign soil,

Peril and toil;

Wars with their noise affright us; when they cease, We're worse in peace:

What, then, remains, but that we still should cry For being born, and, being born, to die?

What loving tête-à-têtes to come!

But tête-à-têtes must still defer!

When Susan came to live with me,

Her mother came to live with her;

With sister Belle she couldn't part:

But all my ties had leave to jog.

What do you think of that, my cat?

What do you think of that, my dog?

Her mother brought a pretty Poll,
A monkey, too: what work he made!
Her sister introduced a beau;
My Susan had a favourite maid.
She had a tabby of her own,
A snappish mongrel christen'd Gog:
What do you think of that, my cat?
What do you think of that, my dog?

The monkey bit, the parrot scream'd;
All day the sister strumm'd and sung:
The petted maid was such a scold,
My Susan learned to use her tongue.
Her mother had such wretched health
She sat and croaked like any frog:
What do you think of that, my cat?
What do you think of that, my dog?

qualia cum sola finxi mihi gaudia soli! gaudia quis faciunt fata maligna moram. nam secum ad Rufi deducta Metella Penates adduxit matrem, filia grata, suam. addidit huic Annam non divellenda sororem. sed parvi duxit me caruisse meis. vos o concilium fidum, felisque canisque, dicite, quid monstrent somnia mira novi! cur te, rauce, queror comitari, psittace, socrum? simia vastabat, pestis alenda, domum. sectari nitidus visus mihi Trossulus Annam, visaque mi dominae Latris adesse suae. non suus aelurus, catulus non defuit illi, cui nomen Titan, hybrida, dente minax. o canis et felis. No longer 'deary,' 'duck,' and 'dove,'
I soon came down to simple M.;
The very servants cross'd my wish;
My Susan let me down to them.
The poker hardly seem'd my own:
I might as well have been a log.
What do you think of that, my cat?
What do you think of that, my dog?

My clothes they were the queerest shape;
Such coats and hats she never met:
My ways they were the oddest ways!
My friends were such a vulgar set!
Poor Tomkinson was snubb'd and huff'd;
She could not bear that Mister Blogg:
What do you think of that, my cat?
What do you think of that, my dog?

At times we had a spar, and then

Mamma must mingle in the song:

The sister took a sister's part;

The maid declared her master wrong.

The parrot learn'd to call me 'fool!'

My life was like a London fog:

What do you think of that, my cat?

What do you think of that, my dog?

dulcia nomina anas, mea vita, columba silentur:

littera nunc Rufo est ista canina satis.

mox famulis ipsis, facinus miserabile, coram obloquitur fracto saeva puella viro.

iamque super foculo componere ligna timebam, nec potui stipes vilior esse domi.

talia dic, felis, moneant quid somnia, tuque
dic, catula, et quo sint conicienda modo!

saepe querebatur de prava veste mariti;
risus erant petasi, nec placuere togae:
saepe viro mores, saepe exprobrabat amicos, dedignata ortos inferiore loco.

insperata bono fecit convicia Balbo:
'an tolerandus' ait 'Ponticus iste mihi!'

'an tolerandus' ait 'Ponticus iste mini!'
talia dic, felis, moneant quid somnia, tuque
dic, catula, et quo sint conicienda modo!
cum vero altercamur, init certamina mater,
et partem pugnae vindicat ipsa sibi.

cara soror carae succurrit voce sorori:

condemnatque reum non proba Latris herum.

'stulte'! salutabat me psittacus ore perito, visaque mi nebulis tristior ire dies.

talia dic, felis, moneant quid somnia, tuque, dic, catula, et quo sint conicienda modo!

My Susan's taste was superfine,

As proved by bills that had no end.

I never had a decent coat:

I never had a coin to spend.

She forced me to resign my club,

Lay down my pipe, retrench my grog.

What do you think of that, my cat?

What do you think of that, my dog?

Each Sunday night we gave a rout
To fops and flirts—a pretty list;

And when I tried to steal away,
I found my study full of whist.

Then, first to come and last to go,
There always was a Captain Hogg:

What do you think of that, my cat?

What do you think of that, my dog?

Now, was not that an awful dream,
For one who single is and snug;
With Pussy in her elbow-chair,
And Tray reposing on the rug?
If I must totter down the hill,
'Tis safest done without a clog:
What do you think of that, my cat?
What do you think of that, my dog?

THE SHORTNESS OF LIFE.

Our life is carried with too strong a tide;

A doubtful cloud our substance bears,

And is the horse of all our years:

Each day doth on a winged whirlwind ride;

We and our glass run out, and must

Both render up our dust.

But his past life who without grief can see,

Who never thinks his end too near,

But says to Fame, 'Thou art my heir,'

That man extends life's natural brevity:

This is, this is the only way

To outlive Nestor in a day.

THE BRIDE IS DEAD.

THE bride is dead! the bride is dead!

Cold and fair and frail she lieth;

Wrapt is she in sullen lead;

And a flower is at her head;

And the breeze above her sigheth, Through the night and through the day, 'Fled away! fled away!'

Once—but what can that avail?—
Once she wore within her bosom

Pity which did never fail;

A hue that dash'd the lily pale;

And upon her cheek a blossom Such as yet was never known:—

All is past and overthrown!

Mourn! the sweetest bride is dead;

And her knight is sick with sorrow That her bloom is lapp'd in lead; Yet he hopeth, fancy fed,

He may kiss his love to-morrow.

But the breezes—what say they?

'Fled away! fled away!'

IDLENESS.

IDLENESS is a stream which flows slowly on, but yet undermines the foundation of every virtue. A vice of a more lively nature were a more desirable tyrant than this rust of the mind, which gives a tincture of its nature to every action of one's life. were as little hazard to be lost in a storm as to lie thus perpetually becalmed: and it is to no purpose to have within us the seeds of a thousand good qualities, if we want the vigour and resolution necessary for exerting them. Death brings all persons back to an equality; and this image of it, this slumber of the mind, leaves no difference between the meanest intellect and the greatest genius. A faculty for doing things remarkably praiseworthy, thus concealed, is of no more use to the owner than a heap of gold to the man who dares not use it. To-morrow is still the

AN AUTUMN LOVE-SONG.

The frail flowers are dying,
The thistledown flying,
Summer is past!
The first leaves that wither
Roam hither and thither
With the treacherous blast;
And away to dark ruin he will ravish at last
Their green mates from the bough,
Where they sigh and tremble now.

The surges are shatter'd,

The tough ragweed tatter'd,

By the gusts of the gale;

O'er lowland and highland,

And round the green island,

A wanderer pale

Strays the sunshine; the moor seethes with whispers of wail,

As its reed-grasses quake,

And serely shudders the brake.

erro, vixque cubantia
tangit rura, virens qua patet insula;

murmur quassat arundines, et per tesqua vagus maeror inhorruit. flores, nil moror, aridi et maestas iterent aequora naenias; The leaves and the surges May chant their wild dirges,

The pale flowers pine.

My heart at their voices

More hugely rejoices;

One draught of Love's wine

Unwinters the earth! thou art mine, thou art mine!

Let the wind have its will

And rave: I glow in its chill!

Thy kisses, warm clinging,

My heart have set singing;

Autumn's at bay!

One rose blooms unmarr'd in

My yew-cloistered garden—

I'll pluck it to-day,

And bid it go die in thy bosom, and say,

With its passionate breath,

'Love greets thee-victor o'er death!'

OENONE.

'O THOU hollow ship, that bearest Paris o'er the faithless deep, Would'st thou leave him on some island Where alone the waters weep! Where no human foot is moulded In the wet and yellow sand-Leave him there, thou hollow vessel, Leave him on that lonely land! Then his heart will surely soften, When his foolish hopes decay, And his older love rekindle As the new one dies away. Visionary hills will haunt him, Rising from the glassy sea, And his thoughts will wander homeward Unto Ida and to me!'

SVSTINET OENONEN DESERVISSE PARIS.

'navis, Priamidem per freta quae volas nobis abripiens perfida perfidum, qua solum mare plangit, illum desere in insula!

illum linque, precor, navis, inhospita terra; linque, precor, nullus ubi virum pes signarit arenas flavas, fluctibus uvidas!

tum corda incipient ferrea flectier, spes postquam fatuae deciderint; amor antiquus revirescet, cum defloruerit novus.

illi conscia mens finget imagines surgentum vitreo marmore montium; Idae mox vaga colles Oenonenque petet suam.' Thus lamented fair Oenone,

Weeping ever, weeping low,

On the holy mount of Ida,

Where the pine and cypress grow.

In the self-same hour Cassandra

Shrieked her prophecy of woe,

And into the Spartan dwelling

Did the faithless Paris go.

AYTOUN.

WHAT MATTER?

We sat on the steps, for the evening was warm;
The scent of the hay-field crept up from the farm;
We spoke very softly—and as to his arm—
It was just Cousin Jack—and so what was the harm?
We were quite in the dark, save the fire-flies' swarm;
A bird whirring out from the hedge broke the charm;
He bent, as I started in foolish alarm,
And ——'twas only old Jack, and so where was the harm?

ELEANOR PUTMAN.

Oenone teneris talia questibus flebat, perpetuis questibus, in sacra pinus quaque cupressus Ida consociant nemus:

ast illo tonuit praescia cladium

Cassandrae fera vox tempore: perfidus illo tecta subibat

Spartanae Paris hospitae.

ROBERT Y. TYRRELL.

THE MEETING OF THE WATERS.

THERE is not in the wide world a valley so sweet,

As that vale in whose bosom the bright waters

meet;

Oh! the last rays of feeling and life must depart, Ere the bloom of that valley shall fade from my heart!

Yet it was not that Nature had shed o'er the scene Her purest of crystal and brightest of green; 'Twas not the soft magic of streamlet or hill, Oh! no—it was something more exquisite still.

'Twas that friends, the beloved of my bosom, were near,

Who made ev'ry dear scene of enchantment more dear;

And who felt how the best charms of nature improve, When we see them reflected from looks that we love.

FVTVRI TEMPORIS EXITVS.

spectes petita fontis origine, destillet herba rivus ut uvida, montisque depingat genistas purpurei viridante filo.

narrare cursus num potes arduos?
quae saxa rumpat? quae saliat super?
salsumve mutarit salubri
quatenus oceanum fluento?

fors in remotis praevalidi fluet munimen oris rivulus imperi, portabit huc illuc triremes, rege manu moderante clavum.

num scis locorum Nais ubi altera aequalis urnam caeruleam prope noctuque procumbens dieque, subter arundineas latebras, opes aquosas condat, ut, avios emensa cursus, amne sororio commista, mox reddat marinis hausta fretis animam innocentem?

T. J. B. BRADY.

OH, WHO WOULD NOT REST WITH THE BRAVE?

Yes, let me like a soldier fall
Upon some open plain,
This breast expanding for the ball,
To blot out every stain!
Brave manly hearts confer my doom,
That gentler ones may tell,
Howe'er forgot, unknown my tomb,
I like a soldier fell.

I only ask of that proud race
Which ends its blaze in me,
To die the last and not disgrace
Its ancient chivalry.

Though o'er my clay no banner wave, Nor trumpet requiem swell,

Enough, they murmur o'er my grave—
'He like a soldier fell!'

EDWARD SULLIVAN.

LADY CLARA VERE DE VERE.

Clara Vere de Vere,

Of me you shall not win renown:

You thought to break a country heart

For pastime, ere you went to town.

At me you smiled, but unbeguiled

I saw the snare, and I retired:

The daughter of a hundred earls,

You are not one to be desired.

Lady Clara Vere de Vere,

I know you proud to bear your name,

Your pride is yet no mate for mine,

Too proud to care from whence I came.

Nor would I break, for your sweet sake,

A heart that doats on truer charms,

A simple maiden in her flower

Is worth a hundred coats of arms.

FASTVS INEST PVLCHRIS.

Iulia, non de me spoliis laudabere raptis; Iulia, clarorum nomine clara patrum: ruricolam ludens voluisti occidere telis Cypridis, urbanos mox aditura procos. ast ego perspexi vultus mendacia blandi, et reduci vito retia tensa gradu. sit genus a centum priscis tibi regibus ortum, est mulier nulli talis amanda viro. Iulia, sublimi tumeant tua pectora fastu, nomina dum iactas eximiumque genus; sed magis elatos animos ego, Iulia, iacto, cui genus haudquaquam referat unde traham. non moriar, fueris quia tu crudelis amanti; nempe magis digno pectus amore calet. stemma tibi placeat, centumque insignia gentis; me tenero simplex flore puella iuvat.

Lady Clara Vere de Vere,

Some meeker pupil you must find,

For were you queen of all that is,

I could not stoop to such a mind.

You sought to prove how I could love,

And my disdain is my reply.

The lion on your old stone gates

Is not more cold to you than I.

You put strange memories in my head.

Not thrice your branching limes have blown
Since I beheld young Lawrence dead.

Oh! your sweet eyes, your low replies:
A great enchantress you may be;

But there was that across his throat
Which you had hardly cared to see.

Lady Clara Vere de Vere,

When thus he met his mother's view,
She had the passions of her kind,
She spake some certain truths of you.
Indeed I heard one bitter word
That scarce is fit for you to hear;
Her manners had not that repose
Which stamps the caste of Vere de Vere.

Iulia, discipuli tibi sunt aliunde petendi, qui facili leges mente subire velint; nam licet Aethiopes, tibi pareat ultima Thule, sperneret indignum mens mea ferre iugum. quae caeca voluisti accendere pectora flamma, hoc audi: 'talis nunc mihi sordet amor': nil moveor durus: non limina servat avita pectore marmoreo durior iste leo. heu! me conturbas, crudelis, imagine dira, quae iactas gentis nomina clara tuae: nondum, ex quo iuvenem vidi Corydona peremptum, ramosae tiliae ter tibi flore virent. ah! dulces oculi tibi sunt, blandique susurri, atque ars Circaea quae magis arte valet; signa tamen iugulo nonnulla impressa ferebat, mente parum laeta conspicienda tibi.

WILLIAM H. KELLY.

Iulia, celsa domus cui sanguine fulget Iüli, sic positum iuvenem matris ad ora ferunt. femina, si quaeris, nec voci iraeque pepercit, nec timuit meritis te violasse probris. una etiam incautae vox excidit aspera linguae, auribus illa quidem vix satis apta tuis; non tegere affectus poterat nec fingere vultum, sicut in Aeneae nata puella domo.

Lady Clara Vere de Vere,

There stands a spectre in your hall:
The guilt of blood is at your door:

You changed a wholesome heart to gall.
You held your course without remorse,

To make him trust his modest worth:
At last you fix'd a vacant stare,

And slew him with your noble birth.

Lady Clara Vere de Vere,
From yon blue heavens above us bent
The grand old gardener and his wife
Smile at the claim of long descent.
Howe'er it be, it seems to me
'Tis only noble to be good.
Kind hearts are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood.

I know you, Clara Vere de Vere,
You pine among your halls and towers:
The languid light of your proud eyes
Is weary of the rolling hours.
In glowing health, with boundless wealth,
But sickening of a vague disease,
You know so ill to deal with time,
Your needs must play such pranks as these.

Iulia, celsa domus cui sanguine fulget Iüli, incestat patrios umbra nefanda Lares. quod sanum pectus vitio mutaveris, ultrix assidua pulsat limina Poena manu. te non paenituit vana spe ludere amantem, non 'meritis' timido dicere 'fide tuis,' frigora mox duri plorat despectus ocelli, et nimia occisus nobilitate perit. Iulia, celsa domus cui sanguine fulget Iüli, scilicet aetheria despicit arce deûm Deucalion, lapides vacuum qui iecit in orbem; Deucalion magnos ridet et uxor avos. solus enim, dicant alii quaecunque, videtur ingenuus, cui sit mens generosa, mihi. effigie potiora patris bona pectora, sordet nobile prae fida simplicitate genus. te (bene enim novi), Teucrorum clara propago, sollicitam misere turris et aula tenent. languidiore tibi iam lumine fulget ocellus, et quereris longum tardius ire diem. scilicet ignota marcescis tabe peresa, dum solidae vires, dum cumulantur opes; cogeris immitem sic ludere, Iulia, ludum, fallere cessantes non bene docta dies.

Clara, Clara Vere de Vere,

If time be heavy on your hands,
Are there no beggars at your gate,

Nor any poor about your lands?
Oh! teach the orphan-boy to read,
Or teach the orphan-girl to sew,
Pray Heaven for a human heart,
And let the foolish yeoman go.

TENNYSON.

SMILES AND TEARS.

You ask me, wondering, why I sing,
And why my lips in laughter part;
The ripples of my mirth all spring
From the deep sorrow at my heart.
A smile is easier than the tear
That serves to keep sad memories green,
And always through what was I hear
The echoes of what might have been.

Iulia, celsa domus cui sanguine fulget Iüli, si nimium lenta labitur hora fuga, respice mendicos ad limina, respice num sit squalidus in patriis unus et alter agris. cura sit orbatae dare lanea pensa puellae, discat et orbatus reddere verba puer, posce deos humana tibi dent corda, colatque rura miser, stulto liber amore, puer.

JOHN DICKIE.

ΔΑΚΡΥΌΕΝ ΓΕΛΑΣΑΣΑ.

tu ne quaesieris sociem cur carmina chordis, et risus circum cur mea labra volet, ortum qui simulans ipso de flore leporum ex imo penitus fonte doloris habet.
triste quidem risus, sed lacrima tristior aegri vulnera cum cordis scissa coire negant;
id neque adest menti fuerat quod amarius olim;
quod, si venisset, dulce fuisset, adest.

ROBERT Y. TYRRELL.

LIFE'S FITFUL FEVER.

SHE had left all on earth for him—

Her home of wealth, her name of pride;

And now his lamp of love was dim,

And, sad to tell, she had not died.

She watched the crimson sun's decline

From some lone rock that fronts the sea—

'I would, O burning heart of mine,

There was an ocean-rest for thee.

'The thoughtful moon awaits her turn,

The stars compose their choral crown,

But those soft lights can never burn

Till once the fiery sun is down.'

LORD HOUGHTON.

MORTE BEATIOR.

nobilitate domus florens et laude pudoris omnia perdiderat posthabuitque viro;
iamque viro marcebat amor, nec fata puellae heu! miserae dederant occubuisse prius.
e scopulo solo solum qui prospicit aequor purpureum vidit praecipitare iubar;
'ah! ubi flammato dabitur requiescere cordi,' dixit, 'ut Hesperiis sol requiescit aquis?
sidera gemmantes nectunt sociata choreas,
consciaque expectat Luna subire vices;
mitibus at nunquam datur his splendescere flammis dempserit igniferis dum iuga Phoebus equis.'

SHERIFF MUIR.

They've lost some gallant gentlemen
Among the Highland clans, man;
I fear my Lord Panmure is slain
Or fallen in Whiggish hands, man.
Now wad ye sing this double fight,
Some fell for wrong and some for right,
But mony bade the world good night.
Then ye may tell how pell and mell,
By red claymores and muskets' knell,
Wi' dying yell the Tories fell,
And Whigs to Hell did flee, man.

EUTHANASIA.

Come, lovely and soothing Death,

Undulate round the world, serenely arriving, arriving,

In the day, in the night, to all, to each, Sooner or later, delicate Death.

Praised be the fathomless universe,

For life and joy, and for objects and knowledge curious;

And for love, sweet love—But praise! praise!

For the sure-enwinding arms of cool-enfolding Death.

Dark Mother, always gliding near, with soft feet, Have none chanted for thee a chant of fullest welcome?

Then I chant it for thee—I glorify thee above all;

Ω patkty aiday, etnazon m' etnazon.

I bring thee a song that when thou must indeed come, come unfalteringly.

Approach strong Deliveress!

When it is so—when thou hast taken them, I joyously sing the dead,

Lost in the loving, floating ocean of thee,

Laved in the flood of thy bliss, O Death.

A TARTAR.

There once was a lady of Russia,

Who scream'd so that no one could hush her;

Her screams were extreme,

You ne'er heard such a scream

As was scream'd by this lady of Russia.

DEATH'S FINAL CONQUEST.

The glories of our blood and state
Are shadows, not substantial things;
There is no armour against fate:
Death lays his icy hands on kings:
Sceptre and crown
Must tumble down,
And in the dust be equal made

With the poor crooked scythe and spade.

Some men with swords may reap the field, And plant fresh laurels where they kill; But their strong nerves at last must yield; They tame but one another still.

Early or late

They stoop to fate,

And must give up their murmuring breath,

When they, pale captives, creep to death.

Then boast no more your mighty deeds:

Upon death's purple altar now

See where the victor victim bleeds:

Your heads must come To the cold tomb:

Only the actions of the just Smell sweet, and blossom in the dust.

SHIRLEY.

BLEAK DECEMBER.

When hungry fowl go roosting soon,
And nightly shines the crystal moon
O'er silent rills,
And icy winds their bugles blow,
And crisping sheet the powdery snow
Out o'er the hills;
Then merrily, merrily trim the fire,
Merrily troll about the bowl,
And merrily sing to your hearts' desire;
For to solace the winter lack
There's nothing so good as song and sack;
So merrily, merrily trim the fire.

DRINKING SONG OF THE CAVALIERS.

Ho! fill me a flagon as deep as you please;
Ho! pledge me the health we all quaff on our knees;

And the knave who refuses to drink till he fall, Why, the hangman shall crop him, ears, lovelocks, and all.

Then a halter we'll string,

And the rebels shall swing,

For the gallants of England are up for the king.

Ho! fling me my beaver, and toss me the glove, That but yesterday clung to the hand of my love; To be bound on my crest, to be borne in the van, And the rebel that reaps it must fight like a man.

For the sabre shall swing,

And the head-pieces ring,

When the gallants of England are up for the king!

CORIOLANUS.

My name is Caius Marcius, who hath done
To thee particularly, and to all the Volsces,
Great hurt and mischief; thereto witness may
My surname, Coriolanus; the painful service,
The extreme dangers, and the drops of blood
Shed for my thankless country, are requited
But with that surname; a good memory,
And witness of the malice and displeasure
Which thou shouldst bear me; only that name remains;

The cruelty and envy of the people,
Permitted by our dastard nobles, who
Have all forsook me, hath devour'd the rest;
And suffer'd me by the voice of slaves to be Whoop'd out of Rome. Now, this extremity
Hath brought me to thy hearth; not out of hope, Mistake me not, to save my life; for if
I had fear'd death, of all men i' the world
I would have 'voided thee; but in mere spite
To be full quit of these my banishers.

LYCIDAS.

Yet once more, O ye laurels! and once more, Ye myrtles brown, with ivy never sere, I come to pluck your berries, harsh and crude, And with forced fingers rude
Shatter your leaves before the mellowing year. Bitter constraint, and sad occasion dear, Compels me to disturb your season due; For Lycidas is dead, dead ere his prime, Young Lycidas, and hath not left his peer: Who would not sing for Lycidas? He knew Himself to sing, and build the lofty rhyme.

He must not float upon his watery bier
Unwept, and welter to the parching wind
Without the meed of some melodious tear.
Begin then, sisters of the sacred well,
That from beneath the seat of Jove doth spring;
Begin, and somewhat loudly sweep the string.
Hence with denial vain and coy excuse,
So may some gentle muse
With lucky words favour my destined urn,
And, as he passes, turn
And bid fair peace be to my sable shroud.

HOLY GRAIL.

There rose a hill that none but man could climb, Scarr'd with a hundred wintry watercourses— Storm at the top, and when we gained it, storm Round us and death; for every moment glanced His silver arms and gloom'd: so quick and thick The lightnings here and there to left and right Struck, till the dry old trunks about us, dead, Yea, rotten with a hundred years of death, Sprang into fire: and at the base we found On either hand, as far as eye could see, A great black swamp and of an evil smell, Part black, part whiten'd with the bones of men, Not to be crost, save that some ancient king Had built a way, where, link'd with many a bridge, A thousand piers ran into the great Sea.

ON THE DEATH OF COL. BURNABY IN THE SOUDAN.

Yes! slain like Hector, smitten in the throat, Where lights the speediest death from foeman's hand,

Low lies brave Burnaby. On that burnt strand Haply some swarthy warrior well did note With fell intent, even as the fierce Phthiote, Where best to plant in him the deathful brand, Madden'd with blood upsteaming from the sand Of kinsmen whom the giant guardsman smote, And still was smiting. Sped the savage shaft, And his sword dropp'd; and from his towering height, Reeling, he fell. Beneath the unquiet sun A huge dead man lay quiet. And the fight Went on around him: gone his knightly craft Clean out of mind, and all his riding done.

CHORIAMBICS.

- Love, what ail'd thee, to leave life that was made lovely, we thought, with love?
- What sweet visions of sleep lured thee away, down from the light above?
- What strange faces of dreams, voices that call'd, hands that were raised to wave,
- Lured or led thee, alas, out of the sun, down to the sunless grave?
- Ah, thy luminous eyes! once was their light fed with the fire of day;
- Now their shadowy lids cover them close, hush them and hide away.
- Ah, thy snow-colour'd hands! once were they chains, mighty to bind me fast;
- Now no blood in them burns, mindless of love, senseless of passion past.
- Ah, thy beautiful hair! so was it once braided for me, for me;
- Now for death it is crown'd, only for death, lover and lord of thee.

Ω TYMBOZ Ω NYMΦEION.

- οἴχεαι, τί πάθοισ'; οὐκ ἔρατός σοι βίος ἦν ἔρφ;
- τίς παραγορίαις θέλγε σε σον φέγγος ἄνω λίπην;

- Sweet the kisses of death, set on thy lips, colder are they than mine;
- Colder, surely, than past kisses that love pour'd for thy lips as wine.
- Lov'st thou death? Is his face fairer than love's, brighter to look upon?
- Seest thou light in his eyes, light by which love's pales and is overshone?
- Lo, the roses of death, grey as the dust, chiller of leaf than snow!
- Why let fall from thy hand loves that were thine, roses that loved thee so?
- Large red lilies of love, sceptral and tall, lovely for eyes to see;
- Thornless blossom of love, full of the sun, fruits that were rear'd for thee.
- Now death's poppies alone circle thy hair, girdle thy breasts as white;
- Bloodless blossoms of death, leaves that have sprung never against the light.
- Nay, then, sleep if thou wilt; love is content; what should he do to weep?
- Sweet was love to thee once; now in thine eyes sweeter than love is sleep.
